

Banker, family bound, slain

GRANDIN, Mo. (AP) — "The dynamite is under my shirt. They've got my wife and daughter. Don't make any telephone calls, you might trigger this dynamite," the small town banker told his employees.

A bizarre extortion plot ended when police officers found the body of the 43-year-old banker, his wife and a daughter bound to small trees near an abandoned farm five miles west of Grandin.

Each was in a kneeling position and each had been shot once through the head, Ripley County Sheriff Lewis Dawes said.

The slayings of Robert R. Kitterman; his 43-year-old wife, Bertha; and 17-year-old Roberta Kitterman touched off a massive manhunt around this once-thriving lumber town 120 miles south of St. Louis. The FBI also entered the case because bank extortion was involved.

Two men were questioned by FBI agents but later released.

Kitterman, president of the Bank of Grandin, left with $9,811 after he entered the bank following the lunch hour on Wednesday and told employees that extortionists had attached dynamite to his body.

Officers alerted by bank employees said Kitterman drove west on Missouri 60. The Missouri Highway Patrol was notified, but it could not intercept the banker.

Dawes and two deputies later found the bodies of the Kittermans. He said there was no dynamite on the banker's body, nor was the money found.

Kitterman's auto and a car belonging to Roberta were both found at the death scene, and officers said a .32 caliber slug thought to have passed through the girl's body was located in a thicket near the trussed victims.

Although authorities theorized that the extortion plot began with the kidnapping of the three at the Kitterman home after Roberta finished her morning high school classes, the Highway Patrol said the house was locked and appeared to be in order, with no disarray.

Mrs. Kitterman was assistant cashier at the family-owned bank. Roberta, a high school senior, worked as a clerk at the bank in the afternoons.

The Kittermans had two other daughters, Kathy, 15, and Patricia, 14. They were attending Ellsinore High School at the time of the slayings. The three sisters were honor students.

Kitterman, the son of a sawmill operator, started as an assistant cashier at the bank and rose to become president.

Neighbors said the Kittermans, while devoting much time to fishing and a farm they owned, "were deeply interested in their daughters."

Paris talks resume on Tuesday

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida White House and Hanoi jointly announced today that top-level Paris peace talks will be resumed Tuesday "for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

Emphasizing that he was reading language approved by both the United States and North Vietnam, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said:

"Dr. Henry Kissinger will resume private negotiations with special adviser Le Duc Tho and minister Xuan Thuy on Jan. 23, 1973 for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

Ziegler indicated Kissinger would leave Washington Monday for Paris and said he could not predict how long the envoy might remain there.

Asked if this would be the final meeting of Kissinger and Tho, Ziegler said, "the announcement will have to speak for itself."

Ziegler said the United States would have no comment on the negotiations "until a final agreement is reached."

At another point, he said: "We are interested in ending this war as soon as possible and ending it through negotiations."

Asked if a cease-fire might take effect in Indochina prior to completion of the promised peace agreement, Ziegler said "there has been an awful lot of speculation along that line," but added he was not prepared to "address that speculation" whether it is right or wrong.

Ziegler also announced that Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., now in Bangkok as part of a Southeast Asia tour to discuss the Paris talks, would return to Saigon Saturday and meet again with President Nguyen Van Thieu. He said he did not know whether Haig would return to Washington prior to Kissinger's departure.

Haig will visit Phnom Penh and Vientiane, as well as Bangkok. He will brief the governments of Cambodia, Laos and Thailand on the present status of the negotiations to end the Vietnam war.

Thieu was reported to still have reservations about the protocols or technical instruments to bring the peace agreement into being, and some political matters also appeared still unresolved. Despite this, Thieu's foreign minister, Tran Van Lam said in an interview published Wednesday that "peace is very near."

Lam's comment seemed to indicate that the remaining issues could be resolved quickly.

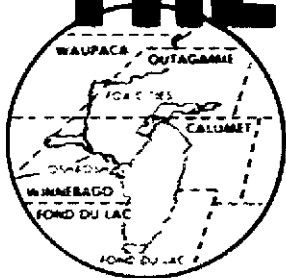

Haig's conferences with Thieu appeared to clear the way for another round of meetings in Paris next week between Kissinger and Tho, possibly followed by the initialing of the peace agreement.

From Saigon, Haig flew first to Phnom Penh and met with President Lon Nol.

After conferring with Lon Nol for two hours, Haig flew on to Vientiane and talked there with Premier Souvanna Phouma for an hour and 45 minutes. Haig then flew to Bangkok to meet with Thai leaders. He was to leave Bangkok for Washington Friday afternoon.

In Bangkok, U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger told the American Chamber of Commerce that the U.S. military strength in Thailand will be scaled down when the Vietnam War ends, but sufficient strength will be maintained to prevent violations of the peace agreement. There are now 49,000 American troops stationed in Thailand.

Inaugural festivities under way

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reception for Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew this evening followed by a "salute to the states" signal the official start of President Nixon's second-term inauguration festivities.

Nixon, who is returning to the capital after six days at his Key Biscayne, Fla., home, will arrive too late to attend two receptions scheduled for tonight. His wife, Pat, is scheduled to pinch-hit for him at both events.

The President and Mrs. Nixon will drop in on three inaugural concerts Friday night. They will also make appearances at five inaugural balls following Nixon's taking of the oath of office at the noon-hour ceremony Saturday at the Capitol.

Meantime, backers and foes of Nixon's war policies laid plans to parade in force Saturday.

The inaugural committee estimated that 50,000 out-of-towners will come for the weekend's events, most of them for the swearing-in and inaugural parade.

More than 180 of the estimated 300 surviving Medal of Honor recipients from as far back as World War I will be honored at the inauguration, beginning with a luncheon today and at a banquet and the inaugural balls Saturday. The banquet will be hosted by one of Nixon's biggest donors, W. Clement Stone, and emceed by Bob Hope.

Meanwhile, embittered veterans from the war in Vietnam are arriving to participate in a protest march from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial at the same time the President parades from the Capitol to the White House reviewing stand. Their planned routes do not cross.

Demonstration leaders predicted tens of thousands of antiwar sympathizers would come despite reports that a cease-fire is imminent and that Nixon may have an announcement about Vietnam as part of his inauguration address.

Tonight, Mrs. Nixon is expected to stay briefly at the Agnews' reception at the Smithsonian Museum of History and Technology, then appear at the salute to the states and their governors.

The salute will take place in the newest and grandest of the federal buildings, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Nixon's younger daughter, Julie Eisenhower, told reporters Wednesday at a White House tea that the President is looking forward more to this inauguration than the last one because he "feels a real sense of achievement ... and this time he's not a minority president."

Senate gets bill to cut warmaking power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators today announced jointly sponsored legislation to limit presidential warmaking powers and to require Senate ratification of all agreements for U.S. military bases overseas.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the bill is backed by a majority of the Senate, at least 51 senators.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., offered two additional amendments to cut off funds provided in a December 1971 executive agreement with Portugal for the use of American military bases in the Azores, and to deny funds for any future agreements for military bases abroad unless they are submitted as treaties.

Both the war-powers bill and the restrictions on executive agreements were passed by the Senate last year but failed in the House.

Senate leaders of both parties, Democrat Mike Mansfield and Republican Hugh Scott, joined in reintroducing the warpowers bill. Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is another sponsor.

The bill would limit to emergency the president's power to commit U.S. forces to combat without specific approval of Congress, and then only for 30 days unless Congress approves.

Presidential authority would be restricted to repelling an attack or the threat of attack on U.S. territory or armed forces, or to rescue Americans imperiled on foreign soil or U.S. ships at sea.

Javits said his bill is not another attempt to legislate an end to the Vietnam war, but "to end the practice of presidential war and thus to prevent future Vietnams."

Time change advanced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional boosters of a plan to extend Daylight Saving Time to a year-round basis say their chances are better than ever because of increasing crime and the nation's fuel shortage.

The extra hour of daylight on winter afternoons would hamper purse snatchers and muggers who prey on late-afternoon pedestrians and it would reduce the use of electric lights in office buildings, they say.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., planned to introduce in the House today a bill to extend DST from its present six-months-a-year status to a fulltime basis. DST is in operation in nearly all the states from the last Sunday of April to the last Sunday of October.

Hosmer's office said 31 other House members had agreed to sponsor the legislation as of Wednesday night. The bill that died in the last Congress had 14 sponsors.

One of the most important names on the bill is that of Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee that must first consider the bill.

"I've been sponsoring this bill for several years in the hope that sooner or later its time would come," Hosmer said in a statement Wednesday. "This year may be it."

Moss, who was cool toward similar legislation in the past, said the fuel shortage is the primary reason he has decided to back the measure this year.

"I think at a time when we are admittedly faced with an energy crisis it makes very good sense to have year-round Daylight Saving Time," Moss said.

Moss explained that under Daylight Saving Time big office buildings, for example, could take advantage of sunlight until later in the day and thus save on electricity.

But one student of the energy situation who works for the Senate Interior Committee said Moss's point is valid but "a whole series of other things would be much more effective than fooling around with Daylight Saving Time" in order to save fuel.

Quota increased on oil imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to alleviate a winter fuel shortage, the Nixon administration has ended import limits on heating oil and boosted total oil-import quotas east of the Rocky Mountains by more than half.

George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, Wednesday announced the decision to suspend controls on imports of widely used No. 2 heating oil through the first four months of this year, but said fuel-oil supplies will remain tight all winter.

Oil industry sources said, however, the move should head off any serious shortage through the rest of the cold season.

Lincoln also said the administration has increased the East Coast total import quota for 1973 by some 915,000 barrels a day, raising the 1972 quota of 1,785,000 barrels a day by about 51 per cent.

The West Coast import quota for crude oil was boosted from the 1972 level of 717,000 barrels per day to 800,000 a day for 1973.

Lincoln said the moves might encourage importers who were saving their allocations to release them now.

Under the present system, importers are allocated shares of the total quota by a formula based mainly on their past imports.

Lincoln also said the administration is considering other major changes in the oil-import system, including the possible auctioning off of additional quotas beginning in 1974.

In predicting the continued shortage, Lincoln said domestic refineries started hiking their production too late. He also cited bottlenecks in the distribution system, environmental restraints and a lack of natural gas as contributing to the overall shortage.

Lincoln said refineries raised fuel-oil output by 5 per cent in the last two months, after the administration pointed to serious shortages in an 11-state region from Colorado to Ohio hit by a cold wave.

Also contributing to the shortage, Lincoln said, was reaction to the government's freezing gasoline prices in 1971 at high levels and fuel-oil prices at low levels. As a result, he said, "we've been on a gasoline (production) binge all summer" while fuel-oil production lagged.

A spokesman for Texaco, Inc., in New York welcomed the White House action as a practical way to ease the shortage.

Other oil industry sources said there are large stocks of heating oil in terminals in Canada and Great Britain that could be imported into the United States.

But Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a leader in the congressional drive to drop import quotas, called it "a stop-gap measure." Conte, whose constituency has felt some cold weather this season, said the "permanent answer to our problems is to scrap the oil-import quotas, totally and forever."

Neenah businessman Samuel Pickard dies

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ. — Samuel N. Pickard, a leading force in Neenah business, civic and cultural affairs for the past 40 years, died Wednesday night.

Pickard, 75, had undergone hip surgery earlier Wednesday. He was spending the winter in Arizona as he had for the past several years.

Pickard's adult life had been devoted to involvement in a broad spectrum of activities which spanned politics, educational fund raising, promotion of cultural events and innovative banking.

He played a dominant behind-the-scenes role in building the Armstrong High School auditorium through donations amounting to more than $1 million.

It was Pickard who salvaged the financially-plagued old Valley Inn in Neenah and when that couldn't make it, tore it down and replaced it with multi-million dollar Ramada Inn. Ripon College and Wayland Academy were two of Pickard's favorites.

His banking career started in Ripon in 1919 as he wanted to earn money to attend college. After a brief interruption to serve with the Marines in World War I, he returned and in 1932 came to Neenah as vice-president of the National Manufacturers Bank.

Four years later he was elected president and added an imaginative flair to the then staid banking profession. He started a trust department and built it to the largest in the state at one time.

While adding new, innovative services to the bank and remaining active in the profession, Pickard still managed to find time to devote to community affairs.

He led the fight for Neenah's new post office, directed fund drives for the YWCA community center, First Presbyterian Church, North Shore Golf Club plus Ripon and Wayland.

Memorials have been established by the family in a statement today from Scottsdale, the First Presbyterian Church of Neenah, Ripon college, Wayland Academy and YWCA community center endowment fund were listed.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at the Valley Presbyterian Church, Scottsdale.

He is survived by his wife, five children and 20 grandchildren.

UW pollutes to keep warm

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The University of Wisconsin says it may be headed for a conflict with antipollution laws because of heating fuel shortages.

The university said it has converted three of its five large boilers from petroleum heat to coal.

"We have certain demands for heat, and yet the only way we can produce it is to burn coal; and to burn coal, we are going to be polluting, which will be in violation of the regulations," UW chief mechanical engineer Richard R. Woroch said.

Roger Dodds, environmental engineer with the air pollution control section of the Department of Natural Resources, said law provides an out, however.

Regulations excuse pollution violations caused by necessary reliance on stand-by fuels for 15 days, Dodds said. Also, the department has the power to extend the 15-day period, he added.

UW boilers were fired by gas and oil.

Three villages consider hiring one inspector

Talks are expected to begin next week on the possibility of Little Chute, Kimberly and Combined Locks joining to hire a full-time inspector for building, electrical and plumbing work in the three villages.

The village presidents have appointed trustees to meet and discuss the proposal, and the building inspectors in the villages also will join in the talks. The trustees are Joseph Versteegen, Little Chute; Eugene Schwaller, Combined Locks; and John Gaffney, Kimberly.

Edward Spierings, Little Chute president, said the inspector could be hired by a commission representing the three villages. The commission would have the same type of authority as the regional sewage commission involving the villages and the City of Kaukauna.

At the present time, the separate positions of plumbing, electrical and building inspectors are part-time jobs for several people in each of the villages. The building inspectors are Gerald Lecy, Little Chute clerk; Patrick Flanagan, Kimberly public works director; and William De Goeij, Combined Locks street superintendent.

Code of conduct would be backed by fines, jail under proposal

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Judges and bureaucrats could be fined $5,000 and jailed for a year under a legislative proposal for enforcing ethical conduct by elected and administrative officials.

The plan is being promoted by a national citizens group, Common Cause, and Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said his office has drafted a version for the state legislature.

Warren, speaking at a civic meeting Wednesday, said the ethics bill calls for fines from $200 to $5,000, and jail sentences of up to a year for state executive officers, judges and administrators.

He called it "one of the most stringent" codes of ethics ever proposed. An open meeting provision, he said, would allow citizens to sue a county's district attorney or the state's attorney general if action were not taken against a code violator within 20 days.

Officials governed by the code would have to disclose personal financial resources. They would be prohibited from: —Receiving financial benefit from serving in office, other than salary and expense accounts. —Receiving or requesting gifts. —Receiving funds for what the code would define as "legislative advice." —Holding conflicting agency or committee assignments. —Engaging in legislative or agency lobbying. —Engaging in business deals involving government. The code also would prohibit officials from disclosing confidential information. "If a representative government is to function effectively," Warren said, "every citizen must have access to information sufficient for an intelligent evaluation of the motivations and actions of public officials."

Berrigan's Hanoi trip is delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A trip to North Vietnam by antiwar priests the Revs. Philip Berrigan and Daniel Berrigan, scheduled for today, was blocked by the intervention of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger Wednesday.

Burger said he would refer the matter to all members of the Supreme Court on Friday, a day after the Berrigan brothers had planned to leave.

Burger stayed a ruling earlier in the day by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that the U.S. Parole Board could not forbid the Berrigans from going to Hanoi.

The Parole Board has sought to block the trip for the Roman Catholic priests, who are on parole after convictions for destroying Selective Service records in a protest against the Vietnam war.

The Berrigans had planned to stop in Paris today en route to Hanoi to meet with religious leaders and others later this month. They have said they would have to be in Paris today to meet their schedule.

After the Circuit Court Wednesday said the Parole Board could not keep the Berrigans from traveling to Hanoi, Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold applied to Burger for a stay of the ruling.

Griswold asked that the stay be in effect until the government could appeal from further rulings that could go against it in U.S. District Court. The Circuit Court had sent the case back to the district court where Judge Oliver Gasch earlier had refused to issue a temporary restraining order against the Parole Board.

The government argued that the Parole Board was justified in blocking the trip because the State Department does not permit U.S. citizens to visit North Vietnam, and this country does not have diplomatic relations with Hanoi.

Bipartisan newsman's shield bill introduced

Sponsors of the legislation are Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republicans Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky and Milton R. Young of North Dakota.

The bill, among several introduced in both houses of Congress already this session, would protect newsmen from revealing information or sources of information, except in libel cases, to a court, grand jury, Congress or other federal agency.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., announced early this week his Judiciary subcommittee on constitutional rights will begin public hearings Feb. 20 on newsmen shield laws proposed in the Senate.

Hatfield, in a speech for the Senate, said the bill "is not an attempt to grant newsmen a special status exempting them from the demands of justice. It is an effort to protect our constitutional right to a wide open and robust dissemination of ideas and information."

"Without the information uncovered by diligent reporters, or supplied them by confidential sources, we would only have the unchallenged assertions of public officials themselves, making it virtually impossible for us to make informed judgments placing blame where it belongs, giving credit where it is due," Hatfield added. Unlike some proposed shield laws, this bill does not protect newsmen from identifying their sources when they themselves are the defendants in a libel case.

This exception was made, Hatfield said, "to prevent a newsmen from attributing allegedly defamatory information to a 'reliable source' and then using that source in his defense without identifying him."

Hatfield said past court actions have resulted in rulings that public officials can recover damages only if the libelous information was published or broadcast with malice.

And, Hatfield said, under his law a newsmen being sued for libel would have to identify an unnamed source only if that identification "will lead to persuasive evidence on the issue of malice."

Long Island rail workers suspend strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Long Island Rail Road executives mapped plans today to get the nation's busiest commuter line running again following agreement with 12 striking unions on a 90-day cooling-off period.

Secretary of Labor-designate Peter J. Brennan announced the truce in the seven-week strike at a Washington news conference Wednesday and said the 3,000 strikers would return at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

After 24 hours of preparations, the first trains are to roll at 12:01 a.m. Saturday. The line's 90,000 commuters were promised full service by Monday and "no fare increase for calendar 1973."

Under the truce arrangement, the strikers will receive a 6 per cent raise retroactive to Jan. 1, 1972 and a three-member panel will be appointed to bring "fresh insights" to renewed bargaining, Brennan said.

Antiwar rally set during inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip Hart and the Rev. Philip Berrigan head the speakers list for an antiwar rally which sponsors say is expected to draw tens of thousands for President Nixon's second inauguration.

And Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., predicted about 165 members of Congress would boycott Saturday's inauguration to protest the President's war policies. He said the boycott is "not organized" and his prediction of those members of Congress who would participate is only an estimate.

"But it will be a big number," Edwards said at a news conference. "I think it will be bigger than 165."

Organizers say talk of a Vietnam cease-fire and a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam have not dampened enthusiasm for a weekend of antiwar activity, which has been endorsed by more than 30 members of Congress.

Nearly all the divergent groups planning to demonstrate emphasize peaceful mass protest as a means of pressuring Nixon to begin his second term with a quick end to the war.

Jerry Gordon, coordinator of the National Peace Action Coalition, said about 1,000 volunteer marshals will be trained to keep order at the rally on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

Predicting tens of thousands will travel to Washington Saturday, Gordon said Wednesday: "The momentum which had been developed has not been slowed by the temporary end to bombing above the 17th Parallel."

Gordon and Sidney Pack of the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice are organizing the biggest of the counter-inaugural activities.

This will be a march from Arlington Cemetery to the monument where the crowd will hear Hart, long a foe of the war; Berrigan, the antiwar priest recently released from prison; Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y.; Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga.; folksinger Pete Seeger; and 10 other speakers while Nixon takes the oath of office on Capitol Hill.

One National Park Service estimate predicts the antiwar crowd will grow to between 30,000 and 50,000.

Meanwhile, Rep. John J. Moakley, I-Mass., called on the Federal Communications Commission to force the three television networks to give as much broadcast time to peace activities as they plan for the inauguration.

"If the networks can waste millions glorifying an isolated administration whose hands are still bloody with recent and unnecessary deaths, surely these networks can focus also on those who are in touch with a nation that longs to inaugurate peace for the first time in a decade," Moakley said.

Vietnam Veterans Against the War announced plans for a separate protest near the Lincoln Memorial. Bart Savage, national coordinator of the group, said the two larger antiwar groups are likely to engage in "theatrics."

Savage said rumors of an imminent cease-fire agreement with the North Vietnamese is "just a sham to keep people away from the demonstrations."

On Sunday, a coalition including Business Executives Move for Peace, will hold a religious service called "An Inauguration of Conscience."

Scheduled for the National Methodist Church of Washington at 2 p.m., the service is intended to "get the message to the rest of the world that we have not lost our image of America," according to one organizer.

Retired Adm. Gene La Rocque said the service is not meant to influence the President.

"He has stopped listening to the American people," La Rocque said. "We hope to stimulate those who attend to work to end our military involvement and make sure we never again attack another nation unless our security is threatened."

Bernstein to conduct a concert for peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be three official inaugural concerts Friday night, with the principal one a bit lacking in political harmony. But the biggest crowd may well turn out for an unofficial fourth concert.

That is "A Concert for Peace" which Leonard Bernstein will conduct at the Washington Cathedral at the same time the Philadelphia Orchestra plays the official inaugural concert at the John F. Kennedy Center.

The 2,760 seats in the center's concert hall are selling for $30 to $500. The cathedral concert is free on a first-come basis until its 2,450 seats are filled.

Special high-fidelity equipment has been installed to carry the music to the grounds outside the cathedral for those who can't get in. Cathedral officials say 10,000 persons could show up, depending upon the weather.

Bernstein will conduct Franz Joseph

Haydn's "Missa in Tempore Bello," or Mass in time of war, with a chorus of 124, four soloists, an organ and an orchestra of 48. The choice is in obvious contrast to Tchaikovsky's martial "1812 Overture," with its cannon sounds, which Nixon has asked the Philadelphians to play.

Bernstein was invited to take part by the Episcopal cathedral, whose dean, the Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre Jr., said he does not view "this as a counter-inaugural or protest of some kind."

"We feel that the cathedral works in music and in art and that a concert was one way we could make our plea for peace," he said.

Bernstein declines to discuss his participation in the concert, but he had some words about the Haydn Mass: "It's joyous, resolute, disturbing, mournful, comforting—that's five adjectives. It's one of the masterpieces of all time."

Courts

A 20-year-old Kaukauna man pleaded guilty Wednesday to selling LSD, when he appeared before Judge R. Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

John F. Konen, 1519 Crooks Ave., Kaukauna, who operates the Down Home Shop, 317 W. College Ave., had been taken into custody shortly after police said he sold 50 LSD tablets for $50 to a police informant at the store the afternoon of Jan. 3.

When arrested, Konen had in his possession a small amount of other drugs, but no charges were issued in regard to them. Instead, the information was read into the record Wednesday and will be taken into account when sentencing is passed.

Cane ordered a presentence investigation and scheduled sentencing for Feb. 6.

Cushion your steps on beauty

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Home Furnishings Editor

The impact of floorcovering on a room is tremendous. This area, which represents the second largest block of color and pattern in a room (the largest is the wall area) can help set the mood, underscoring all the other components.

Selection can range from the marvelous art deco area rugs to orientals, from wall-to-wall carpet in a tremendous quantity of styles to room-size area rugs. There are lovely real wood floors that set a stage in a traditional home. And coming in for consideration are the greatest variety of resilient floor products we have ever seen.

Many new styles and patterns were introduced at the recent International Home Furnishings Market in Chicago.

The spectrum of choice open to the home decorator includes plentiful patterns, colorful moderns and traditional, quiet sophisticates.

Best of all, however, is the news that more and more are easy care, eliminating the need for waxing, that extra process that adds to the agony of keeping a home clean.

And, just as we found in furniture, accessory and carpeting showrooms, manufacturers of resilient floor products have begun to reflect the growing interest in oriental and Americana.

One company which introduced new patterns in these style categories has arranged for matching fabric which will be sold in flooring shops.

As with so many other items in the giant marketplaces at the furniture market, modern technology and consumer trends are changing the traditional hard flooring into luxurious, quietly cushioned products that appeal to many women.

Old-world

Leathercraft has the look of the skill of old world craftsmen in its realistic simulation of hand-tooled leather. From Armstrong's Craftlon Collection, the vinyl-asbestos tile is available in six colors and can be installed at all levels.

American sampler

A patchwork of Americana joins the new GAF Prismatic Vinylflex tile collection. Through an exclusive production process, this tile is enriched with more color than ever before. Also available is matching fabric.

Tile-it-yourself

A random embossed design in Plac'n Press self-adhering floor tile from Armstrong gives the appearance of wall-to-wall sheet vinyl.

Called Chancerv, it is available in several colors. Another plus factor is that it can be placed below grade level.

Tie-dye appearance

From GAF Corp. comes this cushioned vinyl floor covering with the tie dye effect. A colorful splash to place underfoot, the wall-to-wall covering is called Ambrosia.

'Dirty Nick's' a germ freak

I would never have predicted that our middle child would grow up to be a germ nut.

As a toddler Dirty Nick, as we called him, put everything in his mouth from public drinking fountain faucets to pieces of candy he found in chairs in the doctor's waiting room. He consumed mud, gravel, paper, rubber bands, plastic cigarette stubs, goldfish and once devoured two cork coasters before he discovered they weren't cookies.

You can imagine the shock when he said at the table the other morning, "I can't eat this roll. Someone has taken a bite out of it."

The entire table froze into a tabloid of amazement. This from a boy whose hands looked like a commercial for dirt with the dog licking his face.

The fact is Dirty Nick is an interesting study in contradictions.

He will wear the same pair of socks until the toes snap off. Yet, he refuses to use a spoon that has dropped on the floor until it is sterilized.

He will drink from a jug after the entire football team. He will not drink from a glass that has touched his brother's lips.

He wears a fur coat of dog hairs. Yet, he once threw away a hairbrush that had a strand of his sister's hair in it.

He has not seen the top of his desk in three years. He faints when there is a dab of toothpaste on the washbowl.

He refuses to drink Grandma's soft water because it tastes "icky." He eats ice-cream that have formed in the spouting.

He is repulsed by dried egg on the stove burner. He once cooked an entire meal at camp on a set of bedsprings from a nearby dump.

I do not understand you at all, I said. When you were a baby I blew on your food and even touched my tongue to it before it went into your mouth to make sure it wouldn't burn you. Today you won't even eat a breakfast roll after me.

That's gross, he said shivering and sticking his tongue out in disgust. It's a wonder babies aren't sick all the time.

As he passed an ash tray, he spotted a discarded lump of chewed gum and shouted, I got dibs on the gum, and popped it in his mouth.

I will never understand children.

Three sisters to take Army oath

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — In what spokesmen say may be an Army first, three Salt Lake City sisters are to be sworn in next Monday as members of Women's Army Corps.

The sisters — Wanda Lee, 22, Paula Marie, 20, and Pamela Louise, 18 — are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Weimer.

Brig. Gen. Mildred C. Bailey, director of the Women's Army Corps, will come to Salt Lake City to administer the enlistment oath, the Army recruiting office said.

The sisters will report to Ft. McClellan, Ala., next Tuesday for basic training and then will go to Ft. Gordon, Ga., for a 10-week course in communications.

Wanda, a graduate of Brigham Young University, has been working in Provo for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Paula completed three years at BYU, and Pamela attended Ricks College, Rexburg, Idaho, for a year.

Wanda is credited with interesting the other two in joining the Army. "I'm a good recruiter," she said.

Contest planned for designing young people

NEW YORK, N.Y. — A nationwide talent search for young apparel designers has been announced here. Coordinating the effort is Saul Minowitz, director of the New York City Mayor's Office of Apparel Industry Planning and Development. The search will be conducted through a contest on 600 college campuses with six grand prize winners and four honorable mentions.

Called "Young America Creates," the contest is being sponsored by Fashion Capital of the World, the Cloak Joint Board of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and the New York Coat and Suit Industry Council.

Contestants are being asked to submit sketches of not more than six coat and suit designs. Deadline for entries is March 31, 1973. They will be judged by a panel of fashion and industry experts with the winners to be announced in June.

Winning entries will be manufactured by leading apparel firms and sold in stores coast-to-coast. They also will be featured in Mademoiselle's September issue. Winners will be guests of the sponsors for a series of special events highlighted by a fashion show at which their designs will be premiered. Winners also will be offered employment by top manufacturers and designers.

Memory lives

Former champion wrestler George Zaharias, now 63, of Tampa, Fla., is shown in 1955 with his late wife, the famed woman athlete Babe Didrikson Zaharias. George has undertaken several endeavors in her name, including the trophy for The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year, which is named in her honor. (AP Wirephoto)

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — George and Babe Zaharias lived the love story that Erich Segal wrote

Babe, of course, is gone. But George goes on. He's 63 now. The arms that often comforted the world's greatest woman athlete still are strong. But the quick step of a champion wrestler is slowed to a shuffle. A pacemaker was put in his heart recently. He suffers from diabetes. Hemorrhages behind his eyes have faded his vision.

He lives in a little white bungalow on Granada Street, filled with furniture from "their" house and cartons of news clips and trophies and pictures and putters and plaques.

From there, George takes the pulse of his consolidated financial holdings and ponders the future of three pet projects when he, too, is gone.

"I'm not living Babe's life," said George in a steady voice. "I'm trying to live with the living. I know she's dead. I saw her go. I think she finished what she had to do on this earth.

"But I haven't." The endeavors George undertook in Babe's name include a golf tourney for the children he and Babe could never have, a trophy Babe never saw; and a building in her native Beaumont, Tex., to house the hardware representing the honors she reaped before the ravages of cancer killed her in 1956.

The Babe Zaharias Jr. golf tournament for teen-agers, which George had sponsored at Tampa, has been taken over by the Carrollwood Golf Course.

The trophy is the Babe Didrikson Zaharias Trophy for The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year. Babe won it six times, first in 1932 for her gold medal performances in track and field and then in 1945-46-47, 1950 and 1954 for her golf prowess. The AP also selected her as the outstanding female athlete for the first half of the 20th Century.

her if she'd like to give a trophy in her name.

"Honey, I'd love it," she replied. "But none of them cheesy kind of things. Make it something simple and beautiful."

The trophy is simple and beautiful and big. Nearly four feet tall. Zaharias first presented the traveling trophy, and a smaller duplicate to keep, to the 1955 winner, Babe's golfing friend Patty Berg. He hasn't missed a year since.

The big silver symbol now is in the Bar-T Racquet Club in Dallas where 1971 winner Evonne Goolagong, the Australian tennis ace, accepted it last year. Who will get it next and where it will go will be announced Thursday.

George, the son of Greek immigrants who settled in Pueblo, Colo., gave up a lucrative shoeshine shop during the Depression and, against his parents' wishes, headed for Columbus, Ohio, and a long struggle to the top as a championship wrestler. It was while he was in his prime that he met Babe—he was in a threesome with her at a Los Angeles golf tournament. They were married the next year. Not long after their marriage he stopped wrestling and started promoting it—and Babe.

"Babe never asked me to quit although she was afraid I'd get hurt. I loved it. I was rubbing shoulders with all the big sports figures."

"I had a great career of my own. I didn't know it but I found myself dedicating myself to her and letting her do what she wanted."

But, according to George, it was mutual admiration.

"I'd put her on a pedestal up high, and doggone it, she'd put me just a little higher."

Although Babe was a super athlete, George said she was sensitive and fragile and vulnerable.

"When I first put my arms around Babe in Los Angeles, she was shaking like a leaf. Everyone needs a foundation. She was being used. She was alone. Her family didn't understand her because she was too famous. She needed somebody she could trust. I gave her that."

"She gave me a lot, too."

"My fondest memory was every minute I was with her. Just for her to touch me. She had big, beautiful hands and long fingers. She had a touch that would electrify you."

"And we communicated."

The night before Babe died, she told George:

"Bye-bye, honey. I'm going to go now. I love you and thank you for everything."

She slipped into a coma. About 6 a.m. George went down for a cup of coffee.

"Something went through me and I left the coffee and went back up to the room. She woke up just long enough to say goodbye by lifting one finger."

"They want to make a movie of our life. But all they want to do is Babe's records. That's not the story. The story is Babe and me. But 'Love Story' already has been done and that's our story."

"If they ever do a movie, though, I'd use the money to build that shrine in Beaumont. The land and the foundation are there, but we need more money."

"It'd be good for Babe and it'd be good for Beaumont."

Of 338 pairs of twins (676 children) age 6 years and older studied, 203 children, or 30.3 per cent, bit their nails. The habit was 1.5 times as common in girls as in boys. Ann Landers

Love still exists after 18 years

Dear Ann Landers: These days when you hear so much about cheating husbands, wives slipping around to motel rooms in the middle of the day, divorces among close friends (people you were sure had a solid marriage), it might be a relief to get a letter from a woman who is happily married to a wonderful man — and it's been going on for 18 years.

My guy has changed diapers, stayed up nights with sick kids, helped me with the cooking, the marketing and the dishes. He took a part-time job when things were rough and never once have I had to worry about where he was or what he was doing.

We've had our disagreements, of course, but we've never gone to bed mad. I can't imagine life with anyone but this man. I feel like the luckiest woman in the world. — Big G — Little O

Dear Big G.: Beautiful. Just beautiful. How sweet that you consider yourself a lucky girl. I assure you, though, that more than luck is involved when a marriage is as good as yours. It takes patience, maturity, self-discipline, giving — and forgiving. Give my love to that lucky man.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a business woman. I believe in stating the facts and sticking to reality. I was appalled by your reckless exaggeration in a recent column. You said you had traveled at least two million passenger miles and that on occasion you sat on a plane with two thousand letters in your lap.

Two million of anything is a lot — whether dollars or miles. It is highly unlikely that you have traveled one million miles, much less two. As for holding two thousand letters in your lap, your lap would not hold two thousand letters — even if you were a very large woman, which you are not.

So let's have a little more respect for the facts, ma'am. Keep it realistic. Just sign me — Thanks a Million

Dear Thanks: After sitting down with my date book and totaling the number of miles I traveled in 1972 I multiplied it by 18, and came to the conclusion that I have traveled more than two million miles in my lifetime. As for two thousand letters in my lap, I should have been more explicit. Frequently when I travel I carry two thousand letters with me. When I read, most of the letters are in my lap, and the balance is often in my briefcase or on the seat next to me.

Thanks — a hundred.

Dear Ann Landers: That airline stewardess who is having such a rough job at 35,000 feet should try her hand at being a telephone directory assistance operator if she wants a lesson in patience.

To begin with we are not supposed to hang up on people no matter what they say. We must be courteous even if they shout obscenities, call us stupid and ignorant.

We are supposed to handle 100 calls an hour and are timed by computers. True, some people are nice, but a great many are rude. When we ask them how to spell a name, or for an address, they get mad.

The most irritating part of the job is people who leave the phone without letting you know. After you've looked up the number they aren't even on the line to get it.

I feel better for having written this. Thanks for your time, Ann. — S.W.A. Chicago.

Dear S.W.A.: Thanks for yours. From now on I'll make a special effort to be especially courteous to the directory assistant. You've given me added insight.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Legion Auxiliary initiates members, votes donations

Mrs. Ray Lokken, a past Wisconsin Department president, initiated new members of the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 38, when the group met Monday evening at the clubhouse. Each initiate was informed of the aims and purposes of the auxiliary and was given a membership pin, a copy of the constitution of the organization, a flag lapel pin and a memorial poppy.

Mrs. Sherman W. Kapp, Wisconsin Department poppy chairman, will be given sufficient 1973 memorial poppies for use at Badger Girls State at Madison in June.

The Gold Star Mothers' luncheon will take place in April.

During the meeting, members approved donations to Half Way House, Villa Hope and Casa Clare, the Chapel of the Four Chaplains, American Field Service and the unit's adopted veteran at Tomah Veterans Hospital.

Next meeting is slated Feb. 19 when a program on Americanism will be presented by the Rev. Wendell Rex, retired military chaplain who is pastor of Emmanuel Methodist Church.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

What's best way to treat varicose veins?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What's the proper procedure to cope with superficial varicose veins? I wear support hose, and am very busy.

I have been to two doctors and two specialists — I have pain in the back of both legs where the veins are.

What I want to know is whether I should have them surgically removed — dried or stripped? If I have them stripped, what will the reaction be? Will I still have to wear support hose? And how long would I have to stay in the hospital? —Mrs. R.L.P.

You've been to four doctors? What do they advise you do to? After all, their advice, after examining you, would be more valid than mine since I have not.

In general, only relatively minor varicose veins are treated by injections — I interpret that as your meaning of "dried." A sclerosing solution is injected to "dry up" or close off the veins through which circulation is so sluggish as to be doing more harm than good.

When the veins are in such condition that pain in the legs becomes a problem, then it is more usual to remove them by stripping. That means a small incision at top and bottom of a section of varicose vein, and the vein is drawn out lengthwise, so the remaining scars are very small.

It has another advantage or two over sclerosing: The injected or sclerosed veins may leave dark streaks on the legs; and in some cases, the veins may gradually open again later.

With any method, the hospital stay is brief — a day or two. After that you are advised to be mildly active and to walk about, to encourage circulation in the other veins which take over the work of those that failed. Mild household chores, therefore, would be approved.

Your doctor can best give you more specific instructions about how much activity will be helpful for you.

Whether you will have to continue to use support hose after the faulty veins have been removed will depend very considerably on the condition of the remaining veins in your legs.

Such hose does not correct varicose veins or improve them; it can to some degree retard the progress of varicosity; it is primarily a matter of comfort. If your legs are less painful or tire less easily when you wear such hose, that's your answer. Wear it. If you do not require support for comfort, then you can get along without support hose. Best advice I can give about that is to wait and see.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My sister-in-law's baby is six months old. It's a normal baby and all, but it's tongue is always sticking out. It's as though its tongue was too big for its mouth.

It is not sickly or anything, but it is always sticking out and she sucks on it every so often. Is this anything that should be paid attention to or should we ignore it? —Mrs. J.M.K.

The tyke probably just has discovered her tongue and is maneuvering it as part of the suckling instinct.

While I doubt there is any problem here, I would advise your sister-in-law to call it to the doctor's attention at the next visit.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I understand a bladder stricture can be caused by VD. Does this mean anyone who has a stricture had VD at one time or another? —B.L.

Of course not. The stricture can have resulted from an infection of some entirely different type.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can to relieve the problem, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, requesting the booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use Zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Opponent's bid warns of potential danger

The opponents bid for reasons of their own, not to give you information. However, in today's hand the bidding warned declarer that East might have a singleton heart. The threat was clear, and South found a way to meet it.

Opening lead — ♥ Q

South's first step was to win the opening lead with dummy's ace. It would be fatal to let the first trick ride around to declarer's own king.

South's next move was to take the ace of spades and continue with the queen of spades to draw trumps as quickly as possible. Here again South avoided a pitfall since a trump finesse would have been fatal.

West won the second round of trumps with the king and returned the jack of hearts. East could use his last trump to ruff this trick, but this permitted South to play his low heart. He still had the king of hearts for later use.

The defenders could take the ace of clubs sooner or later, but this was only their third trick. The contract was safe.

Now let's examine the traps that South avoided. If South wins the first heart trick in his own hand, East will be in position to ruff dummy's ace of hearts when that suit is next led. West regains the lead with the ace of clubs in time to cash another heart trick. The defenders thus get two hearts and two trump tricks.

Even if South avoids this trap, he will still lose the hand if he takes a finesse on the first round of trumps. West wins and leads a heart for East to ruff. West gets back with a club and leads another heart, giving his partner a second ruffing trick.

Daily question

Partner bids one diamond, and the next player passes. You are next, holding: S-5 4 2, H-5, D-Q J 8 6, C-9 8 5 3 2. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two diamonds. You have 3 points in high cards and 3 points for the singleton, enough for a raise of partner's suit.

Village shows big increase in building projects

COMBINED LOCKS — Construction costs in the village during 1972 amounted to $836,200—more than double the 1971 amount of $384,355 and four times the amount in 1970.

Two building projects under taken in 1972 will not affect the tax base as neither is taxable. These include a $305,000 anti-pollution waste water treatment plant at Combined Mills and a $10,000 new park shelter, according to the annual report of Building Inspector William DeGoe.

Twenty-six new homes costing $478,800 were constructed in 1972 compared to 13 costing $241,700 in 1971. Nine residential additions or remodeling projects were undertaken in 1972 costing $15,200 compared to six costing $3,930 the previous year.

Eighteen garages were built at $26,400 last year compared to 10 costing $12,500 in 1971. Three miscellaneous building projects including fences and driveways were undertaken at a cost of $800 last year. With the exception of the park shelter, there was no other municipal building last year.

The 1972 report did not show any commercial building or remodeling projects whereas $80,000 in commercial building was undertaken in 1971. Also in 1971, a $45,000 addition was made on the village garage.

Attack on press marks sheriffs' meeting

By BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

A promised disclosure of the "facts" behind the recent controversy surrounding a magazine published by the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association Wednesday turned into a blistering attack on the press by the association's attorney-publisher Robert I. Perina.

It was learned that Perina, around whom the controversy has centered, will remain as the association's legal counsel and lobbyist but will, under pressure, give up his job as publisher of Wisconsin Star within a couple of months.

His future with the association reportedly was discussed during a closed door meeting with its board of directors. The association is holding its annual winter conference in Appleton.

An outburst in the midst of Perina's discussion with association members during a business session Wednesday resulted in a demand to oust former Dane County Sheriff Vernon (Jack) Leslie from the meeting room.

Leslie, who was beaten in a re-election bid last November, stood nose-to-nose with Milwaukee Journal reporter David Offer and called him a liar. Offer wrote a front page article last October, critical of how the nonprofit association was raising and not spending funds through its official publication, Wisconsin Star.

The confrontation between Offer and Leslie, who now is affiliated with a private police-security service, took place as Offer was questioning Perina about certain actions as publisher of the magazine.

Leslie asked Offer about a statement Perina accused him of making to the board of directors last October regarding an alleged threat to "slant" news stories if not given cooperation on his story involving the magazine. When Offer denied the allegations, Leslie swore at him and called him a liar.

Portage County Sheriff Nick Check demanded that the sergeant-at-arms remove Leslie who then left voluntarily. He repeated his statement to Offer as he left the room. Association President Frank Sarafin of Clark County apologized to Offer for the incident.

Offer, in an Oct. 8 story, charged that Wisconsin Star had misled advertisers by implying that the association was spending revenues, in part, on youth-oriented activities with which, according to the newspaper, it had no connection.

The newspaper also charged that, during 1971, Wisconsin Star raised $160,000 for the association which spent only a few hundred dollars on youth activities, that being for week long camp membership for four boys.

Appointment met by snag

By CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

It's the sort of thing that can happen if you don't have a personnel director, mused an embarrassed Mayor James Sutherland.

Sutherland withdrew his appointment of David F. Bill, 31, Kenosha, to fill Appleton's vacant job of personnel director after an alderman pointed out Bill lacks the college degree required by city ordinance for the post.

But Sutherland stuck by the selection despite the error pointed out by Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd).

"We do have the right man, but we don't have the right ordinance," insisted Sutherland.

Sutherland offered the appointment to the city council for confirmation during Wednesday night's regular council meeting. The council recessed for nearly a half-hour after Kalata asked whether Bill has the degree in personnel or business administration required by ordinance.

The mayor conferred at length with City Atty. David Geenen and several aldermen who had been involved in the selection process or serve on the finance committee which has jurisdiction over the personnel office.

Steiger loses bid for Byrnes' former seat

WASHINGTON — Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, a contender for the Republican seat on the powerful House of Representatives' Ways and Means Committee vacated by former Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, lost in his bid for that position and will remain on the education and labor committee.

Steiger, 34, in his fourth term in Congress, today said he was "disappointed" he didn't get the appointment.

However, he added he is "looking forward to continuing service" on the education and labor committee where he is considered the GOP leader and spokesman on manpower problems and policies. He has been a member of that committee since his election to Congress in 1966.

Steiger is the ranking Republican on agriculture-labor subcommittee of that panel.

The Congressman said he views legislation on such matters as pension reform, minimum wage, elementary and secondary education and agriculture labor as "important challenges" for the committee in the 93rd Congress.

Roger Minahan elected chairman of resource board

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — Roger C. Minahan, Milwaukee lawyer and member of the state Board of Natural Resources for the last four years, today was elected chairman of the policy-making agency which rules the broad program of natural resources management in Wisconsin.

He succeeds D. K. Tyler of Phillips, two-term leader of the body.

Stanton P. Helland of Wisconsin Dells was named vice chairman and Harold Jordahl of Madison, secretary.

Minahan was named to the board by former governor Warren Knowles, whose nominees on the seven-member group remain in voting control two years after the election of Democratic Gov. Patrick Lucey.

The election of Jordahl, a Lucey appointee, as a board officer probably suggests that he will become chairman when the Lucey nominees have numerical control next year. Jordahl is the governor's principal natural resources adviser.

Minahan is a senior partner in a Milwaukee law firm and is a native of Green Bay, where he began his professional career. He is secretary of the board of directors of Post Corporation, which publishes The Post-Crescent.

According to Bill's personal background summary accompanying Sutherland's written announcement of selection, he lists his present status as "second semester junior, inactive," majoring in personnel administration

Meeting tonight

Mayor James Sutherland today called a special council meeting for 7:30 p.m. tonight to attempt to resolve the problem of his appointment of a personnel director. He said Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) will offer a resolution to change present ordinance requirements for the job, to accept "work experience deemed to be equivalent to" the currently required college degree.

through the University of Wisconsin system.

He has attended UW classes at Madison, Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee. From November, 1967, to the present time he has been administrative assistant and supervisor of personnel for the City of Kenosha.

Sutherland said his selection of Bill remains firm. "There is absolutely no question in my mind that we have found the best-qualified person for the position."

He said that between now and the next council meeting he will seek to have the ordinance amended to permit Bill's appointment, though Geenen said that without changing the ordinance the action would be improper.

Sutherland said the situation illustrates the importance of the personnel director. He said it shows "what can happen when you try to hire a personnel director when you don't have a personnel director on board."

Before Kalata raised the college degree issue, Ald. Edward Maloney (9th) questioned the recommended salary of $15,940.

Maloney said that was more than the previous personnel director, Gerald Lang, could have received this year according to Sutherland's recommended ceiling of 5.4 per cent on raises for department heads.

Lang's salary before he resigned to take a job with Winnebago County was $14,805. The maximum he could have received under Sutherland's guidelines for pay increases would have been $15,704, Maloney said. He questioned so large an increase for a newly hired employee over his predecessor.

Sutherland replied that Lang left because Winnebago County offered him a substantial raise. He said the pay level recommended for Bill is based on an average of personnel directors' pay in 10 Wisconsin cities, plus a 4.45 per cent increase.

Because of the personnel director's role in labor negotiations, he has an important function in keeping down personnel costs and taxes, Sutherland argued to justify paying the officer well.

No action on waste proposal

Opponents in the city-county solid waste dispute fired off a few more arguments Wednesday before Ald. Fred Rehfeldt (18th) kept his vow to send a resolution pledging the city to participate in a county disposal system back to committee for more study.

Rehfeldt, who doubles as a county board supervisor, said he "would like to see an independent study by some consulting engineers" before a choice is made between mechanical shredding and incineration as means of handling waste.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th), referring to technical comparisons of costs and other factors by city and county specialists, declared the question already "has been studied by the experts."

The decision has been controversial, accused Thompson, because "We have had salesmen and politicians trying to decide what we should have."

Public Works Director Robert Miller, County Planner Robert Stadel and Public Services Coordinator Frank Charlesworth prepared the technical study which favored the shredder method, offered by Ellis-Chalmers, as least costly.

City Incinerator of Wisconsin, Inc., has been seeking to provide either the county or city with an incineration system.

Ald. William Errington (15th) criticized Miller for failing to keep what Errington said was an informal agreement to give City Incinerator data about the city waste disposal needs in time for a streets and sanitation committee meeting Monday.

City Incinerator had hoped to use the data from Miller as the basis for a firm offer to the city, but Miller didn't mail the information until Monday.

The committee recommended adopting a resolution drafted by Miller that would pledge the city to participate in any county-wide disposal system that costs the city less than the present $3.80 per ton it spends for disposal.

The resolution was approved and sent to the council despite the lack of the City Incinerator counteroffer. Aldermen reasoned that there would still be time to study the incinerator plan since Rehfeldt announced at the meeting that he would refer the resolution back.

Errington also repeated complaints that have been raised by other critics, that the county board considered the Allis-Chalmers offer without including representatives of county municipalities other than Appleton in the discussions.

He also announced that tests run recently on a City Incinerator installation at Chilton showed the facility falls within state Department of Natural Resources air pollution limits, another item of controversy.

Errington charged that officials are "afraid to take a look at" both sides of the issue, while willingly undertaking detailed studies of numerous other current matters.

In other business, the council: —Adopted an interlocking set of studies and factfinding assignments for special committees and individual aimed at identifying potential sites and selecting architects for the proposed police station project.

The measure, offered by Mayor James Sutherland and endorsed by the Board of Public Works, passed after Sutherland answered Ald. Edward Maloney's suggestion that the site selection process was being handled backwards, and a companion proposal by the 9th Ward alderman to set a March 6 deadline for picking a site.

Maloney suggested the date to coincide with the deadline for picking an architect. He said Sutherland's proposal to determine the size and shape of the building before picking a site should be reversed, with the building designed to fit the chosen site.

Sutherland explained that until the size and shape of the building are determined, through a process known as programming which it is hoped will be carried out with state-federal assistance, it is not known how large or in what shape the site must be.

Maloney withdrew his motion for a March 6 site-selection deadline after Sutherland assured him the programming report would be "an early order of business."

It was also revealed that city and county officials will meet next Monday to discuss a county offer of space in the courthouse annex for the police station.

Bond issue in court Jan. 31

KAUKAUNA — City Atty. Donald Green has informed city officials that written briefs have been filed with the state Supreme Court concerning the city's issuance of $2,400,000 in industrial development revenue bonds and oral arguments will be heard by the court on Jan. 31.

It is hoped the Supreme Court will rule on the legality of industrial revenue bonds before the end of February, Green said. The city is involved in a test case, which will have statewide ramifications, of a 1969 law passed by the state legislature. It would permit a municipality to issue industrial development bonds to be used for industrial plant expansion, renovation, pollution abatement projects and other programs in the public interest.

City officials have approved issuance of $2,400,000 in bonds with which to finance waste water treatment facilities at the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. This would permit financing the project at a lower interest rate than is normally available to industrial concerns as interest on bonds issued under the law is free from federal taxation.

Since the law is vague in some areas, the State attorney general suggested that a test case be brought before the Supreme Court. To bring the case to the court, Mayor Robert La Plante had to take a stand as respondent in the case with the city and Hammermill Paper Co., of which Thilmany is a division, serving as petitioners.

The court now is being asked to render a declaratory judgment on the matter to resolve doubts about the validity of the Wisconsin legislation. Upon a favorable decision, the bonds can be issued with proceeds used to purchase Thilmany's water effluent treatment plant and associated equipment.

After purchasing the equipment, the city immediately leases it back to Hammermill with rental payments under the lease paying in full the interest and principal on the bonds. The bonds are not considered part of city indebtedness under the state statute.

Other states have laws permitting issuance of industrial development revenue as a means of attracting and promoting industry. With a favorable ruling from the Supreme Court, it is expected that communities throughout the state would turn to such bonding in an effort to promote industry.

County officials not too pleased

By DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

County officials expressed disappointment this morning over the failure of the Appleton City Council to adopt a committee recommendation that the city endorse any county solid waste disposal plan which would be cheaper than the city's present sanitary landfill operation.

The recommendation was referred back to committee on a move of parliamentary privilege by Ald. Fred Rehfeldt (18th), who also is on the county board.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, chairman of the board's zoning committee which is handling the solid waste issue, said, "last night's action is a disappointment to me." He said the metropolitan area needs help the most and "After two years of study I felt we had a program worked out."

He noted that Appleton's landfill site is located in a floodplain and could be closed on short notice. "That's why we have pushed so hard for a solution," he said.

County Executive Alvin Woehler said he also was disappointed, but "I still feel positive the city will respond favorably."

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th), who is superintendent of buildings for the county, told the zoning committee he thought most of the aldermen wanted to allow City Incinerator of Wisconsin, Inc. to submit its proposal before acting.

City Incinerator was to have submitted its proposal prior to the council meeting but claimed it did not get figures from Appleton in time to do so.

Woehler said he has supported the Allis-Chalmers shredder proposal on the basis of price, but "I don't think we can restrict our consideration to cost alone. For a proper solid waste program we must be able to do research, we must be able to understand recycling."

Damage in millions after warehouse blast

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — A warehouse filled with 15,000 tons of fertilizer exploded after a fire Wednesday night, touching off major fires at two other plants in an industrial area four miles southeast of here.

Police said six persons were injured. Only two remained hospitalized today. The hospital refused to identify those admitted or treated.

The blast damaged but did not puncture four large tanks near a Cherokee Nitrogen Co. warehouse which contained a highly explosive liquid nitrogen substance. Fire also damaged two gypsum plants in the 9,000-acre Mid-America Industrial District.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol estimated damage at the Cherokee Nitrogen at between $12 and $15 million.

The explosion was felt 44 miles to the southwest in Tulsa, and it blew out many windows in downtown Pryor.

Police said firemen called to fight a blaze of undetermined origin at the Cherokee Nitrogen warehouse found the structure engulfed in flames. The eight employees had evacuated the building, which contained ammonium nitrate fertilizer.

"I saw that it was out of control and we started backing off," said Mayes County Deputy Sheriff Jack Nation, who had arrived with the firemen.

"Then it blew. I was less than a block away and we were knocked to the ground but not hurt."

Officials said flaming material carried one-quarter of a mile on a strong southerly wind touched off fires at plants operated by the National Gypsum Co. and the Gypsum Division of the Georgia-Pacific Corp.

A spokesman for National Gypsum said damage to its plant could run as high as $1 million. Gypsum Division officials declined to comment on the damage at their facility.

Both plants produce a paper facing used in wallboard.

Authorities said a Grand River Dam Authority sub-station and another smaller building in the area also received damage.

Corona jury still out

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The jury in the Jan. 9 Corona mass murder trial headed into its second week of deliberations today still struggling to break an 11-1 deadlock.

The last word from the jury was an inquiry Tuesday about the legal definition of "reasonable doubt."

The jury also reported at that time that it was divided 11 to 1, but did not say whether the majority favored conviction or acquittal on the 25 counts of first degree murder against Corona, a Mexican national who is a farm labor contractor.

The case went to the jury of 10 men and two women last Thursday morning after 14 weeks of testimony from 116 witnesses. Nearly 1,000 pieces of evidence and 23 million words of testimony were presented in the complex circumstantial evidence case.

When the jury recessed for the day Wednesday, the time spent in deliberations totaled 44 hours.

Corona, 38, is charged with slaying 25 transient laborers whose bodies were found buried in orchards near Yuba City in 1971.

4 of family are found dead

WATERFORD, Wis. (AP) — Two children and their parents were found dead Wednesday in their home which authorities said contained exhaust fumes from an adjoining garage.

A fifth victim, a 12-year-old boy found unconscious beside his mother's body, was hospitalized in Burlington in critical condition.

The victims were discovered by authorities who were trying to determine why the children had not attended school this week.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orlove, Cindy Orlove, 14, and Craig Orlove, 11.

They appeared to have been dead for several days, officials said. Acquaintances reported not having seen the family since a weekend party sponsored by a snowmobile club.

Police said the engine of a car in the garage was not running, but that the ignition was on.

Orlove worked for a chemical company in Oak Creek.

Hotel clerk shot by young man in robbery

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Ann Harpole was tending the desk of a downtown hotel when a young man walked through the door, pulled a gun and demanded money.

"Go to hell," she said.

"I'm going to count to two and then I'm going to shoot you," he said. And he did.

The 51-year-old clerk was reported in fair condition at San Jose Hospital Wednesday night after surgery for a bullet wound in her stomach. Police said the assailant, who was about 19, escaped but got no money.

Watergate trial held up after ruling appealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ex-FBI agent testified in the Watergate trial that he was paid $225 a week by President Nixon's campaign staff for eavesdropping on Democratic party telephone conversations.

Alfred C. Baldwin III said he listened from morning until after dark and logged the contents of some 200 phone calls that a security agent for the Committee for the Re-election of the President had wiretapped.

Baldwin's testimony was interrupted Wednesday afternoon by a dispute over whether he should name those whose conversations he overheard. Lawyers for some of the bugged Democrats sought to keep their private affairs from being aired in court.

Lawyers in the case said U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica ruled against the Democrats in a closed-door hearing. The attorneys said an appeal would be carried to the Court of Appeals today before the trial could continue.

On trial in the burglary-wiretap case are James W. McCord Jr., former security chief of the Nixon campaign, and G. Gordon Liddy, who was counsel to Nixon's campaign finance committee at the time of the break-in at Democratic headquarters last June.

Five others earlier pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentencing in connection with the alleged political-espionage conspiracy against Democrats. The alleged plot came to light after five of the seven were captured at gunpoint inside the Democratic National Committee offices in Washington's Watergate complex.

Baldwin said he first was hired at a salary of $70 a day as a bodyguard for Martha Mitchell, wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell who at the time was Nixon's campaign manager.

But after a week of that, Baldwin said, he was given other duties and a pay cut, and told "by Mr. McCord that, if Mr. Nixon was re-elected, this was the way to join the team and go up the ladder."

Baldwin is expected to be the chief witness in the government's attempt to prove conspiracy charges against Liddy and McCord. Former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr., and four Miami men with Cuban and CIA backgrounds, Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank S. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, have pleaded guilty to the charges.

Tim Leary returns with narcotics agent escort

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary, former Harvard lecturer and drug advocate, was flown to Los Angeles today with a two-man escort from the U.S. Narcotics Bureau.

Leary escaped in September 1970 from prison in San Luis Obispo County, Calif., where he was serving a 10-year sentence on a drug conviction. He was expelled from Afghanistan on Wednesday.

In the summer of 1971 he was arrested in Switzerland and later had to leave the country. Efforts by the State of California to extradite him failed, however. He also sought refuge in Algeria and Afghanistan.

Leary, accompanied by a friend, Miss Joanna Harcourt-Smith, arrived by air from Kabul today and was held incommunicado by British immigration authorities until his Los Angeles plane was ready to leave. Miss Harcourt-Smith left with him.

Rogers backs U.S. plan for Mideast peace

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers says the most realistic approach to permanent peace in the Mideast lies in the U.S. plan to reopen the Suez Canal.

Rogers said Wednesday night that the 2½-year-old proposal would be but "a first decisive step" on the road to a final settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Rogers, who spoke at a dinner honoring departing Israeli ambassador Yitzhak Rabin, made no reference to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's Jan. 8 statement that he had given up all hope on the U.S. proposal.

"We are convinced that both sides — Arabs and Israelis — want a settlement based on the U.N. Security Council resolution of November 1967. Thus, in our judgment the doors of diplomacy remain open," Rogers said.

He predicted that 1973 would be "a favorable time for negotiations."

Today's chuckle

Men congregate in the kitchen these days because it's one of the few places they can go to get away from women. (Copyright 1973)

Earlier reports said Leary had been held under house arrest in the Afghan capital. There is no extradition treaty between the United States and Afghanistan but Foreign Ministry officials in Kabul said: "We want Leary to leave Afghanistan because we do not want to add to the country's bad name in drug trafficking."

The Pan American World Airways jumbo jet carrying Leary in from Kabul arrived in midmorning. It was immediately boarded by British immigration officials, a U.S. Embassy official and the two Narcotics Bureau agents.

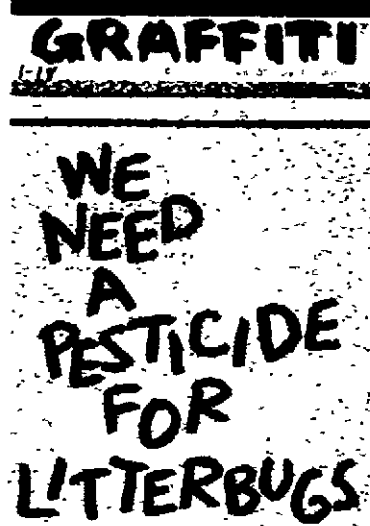

A few minutes later they walked down the steps from the aircraft with Leary and Miss Harcourt-Smith.

Leary wore an open-necked yellow shirt, blue trousers and soft white shoes and carried an overnight bag. His friend wore a fur coat and had necklaces over her blouse. As they made their way 300 yards to the immigration hall, Leary and Miss Harcourt-Smith were embracing all the way.

Shortly before disappearing into the hall, Leary turned to reporters and said: "I'm going to get a lawyer."

Leary left Switzerland for Vienna at the end of December and then went on to Afghanistan. He arrived in Kabul on Sunday. Afghan authorities arrested him immediately and seized his U.S. passport.

The passport was handed to the U.S. Embassy in Kabul, which provided Leary with an identification card to permit him to travel back to the United States.

$100,000 strip eyed at Wittman

OSHKOSH — Immediate steps were being taken today to amend a 1970 master plan so that improvements at Wittman Field, estimated to cost in excess of $100,000, might qualify for state and federal aids.

Airport manager Michael Brock said this morning he would make preparations today to amend the plan, which did not include the construction of an 850 by 50 foot strip accommodating heavier aircraft at the port.

The disclosure that an $100,000 project was being considered for Wittman Field was made before the county board Tuesday night, and came as a complete surprise since a $25,000 county financial share had not been budgeted for 1973.

Brock said today that the proposed project involves the construction of an 850 by 50 foot strip of concrete, 10 inches deep, which would connect an aircraft apron at the airport with a taxiway leading to the north-south runway.

An estimate from the State Department of Transportation's division of aeronautics fixed the cost at $116,000, Brock said. The estimate includes the installation of medium intensity lighting, he said.

The concrete strip would be poured adjacent to an existing asphalt strip, which has been criticized for its inability to support aircraft weighing in excess of 90,000 pounds.

Tuesday, Walter Evanson, Oshkosh, saying he represented the 500 member local American Voyager Club, again related how 150 members were turned away from landing or departing over the Thanksgiving weekend at Wittman Field because their chartered plane, a Convair 990, was not permitted to taxi across the strip owing to weight limitations.

The plane weighs in the neighborhood of 200,000 pounds; the strip supports loads up to 90,000 pounds.

Brock said the amending of the 1970 master plan, compiled by the consulting engineering firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, would be the first step toward acquisition of state and federal aids.

Brock said it was hoped that aids totaling 75 per cent of the total cost could be obtained from the two agencies. But he gave no assurances that the two agencies, both of which must perform a review, would accept an amendment in the master plan.

The master plan, a 72-page document, projected needs at the airport through the year 1985, but failed to take this particular project into account, Brock noted. This was the reason preparations would be made to amend it.

Goodwill plans new rehabilitation center

MENASHA — Ralph Shiner, Goodwill Industries division manager, clarified his organization's role for Menasha Rotarians and spoke briefly on Goodwill's building program soon to get off the ground, at a Wednesday luncheon.

Goodwill, Shiner said, plans a large rehabilitation center that will serve the Fox Valley handicapped population. The center, planned at a 10 acre site at the intersection of Airport Road and highway 47 will include a new Goodwill store, production area, medical area and rehabilitation and recreation areas. The new facility will cover about 94,000 square feet, Shiner said.

Presently, Goodwill has one training center at 120 N. Lake St., Neenah. The Woodwill store is located at the Airport Road and State 47 site.

Shiner stated that more information on the building project would be available in about two weeks time.

The bulk of Shiner's remarks to Rotarians focussed on the many functions of Goodwill Industries. He stated that most people are ignorant of Goodwill's many services for the mentally and physically handicapped. People usually associate Goodwill, Shiner said, with a place to discard unused household items.

The things people throw away, Shiner stated, are the "tools of learning and training" for the handicapped. Once refurbished, they also serve as budget items for low income families.

Goodwill Industries provide the handicapped with programs for rehabilitation, enabling them to become productive members of the community, according to Shiner. Goodwill's job begins with analyzing and evaluating talents and abilities of the handicapped, helping them to adjust to work conditions, giving them on-the-job training and finally placing them in suitable jobs.

For the handicapped person who can never adapt to a normal work situation, Goodwill provides sheltered workshops, Shiner said.

The Department of Welfare estimates it costs taxpayers a minimum of $5,000 a year to support a handicapped individual who is not working. Shiner emphasized that it was important to train and rehabilitate the handicapped and get them off the welfare rolls.

Once rehabilitated, the handicapped individual is earning money and paying taxes and functioning productively in the community. Shiner pointed out that in 1970 alone Goodwill Industries in the nation paid out over $40,000 million in salaries to the handicapped. The Fox Valley Goodwill center serves about 80 to 100 handicapped persons per day and a total of 400 individuals were served in 1972.

Goodwill Industries, however, are in need of more training centers, new trucks, new stores in order to operate effectively, Shiner stated. Most important, he added, it needs the support of individuals and businesses in the community to continue.

Study asked of special assessments

Recent objections by Appleton property owners prompted an alderman Wednesday to propose a study aimed at revising the city's policy for levying special assessments for street and utility construction.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) suggested a special committee of elected officials should study present policies and recommend changes before the 1974 city budget is adopted.

He was joined by Ald. Bruce Stutzman (1st) who offered a less sweeping proposal to eliminate the current practice of assessing for a minimum of 50 feet of sewer even when the property owner's actual street frontage is shorter than that.

The resolutions were submitted to the council at the end of the regular session, during which aldermen approved a number of measures aimed at meeting property owners' objections over past or proposed assessments.

The council passed a final resolution levying assessments against property fronting on Morrison Street between Pacific and Atlantic streets and on the Richmond Street-College Avenue intersection, where improvements are scheduled next summer.

But aldermen also ordered a subcommittee of the board of public works to be formed to decide whether adjustments are needed in the assessments proposed for the College-Richmond project where owners of business property have complained they are being charged too much.

There also were adjustments ordered in special assessments for individual property owners, and a Rogers Avenue sanitary sewer replacement project was ordered delayed until officials determine who caused acid deterioration of the present, relatively new, sewer.

March of Dimes

The 1973 Outagamie County March of Dimes Campaign will begin officially Sunday with a kickoff brunch from 10 a.m. to noon at the Left Guard Charcoal House in Appleton, according to Cyril M. Wolff, campaign director. Wolff posed recently with Miss America — Terry Anne Meeuwsen — and Mrs. Thomas Scheffler, Appleton, and her son, Jeremy, this year's poster child. The Mothers' March of Dimes Campaign will begin Monday.

Sheriffs back freeze on patrol power

Despite a warning that it smacked of "professional jealousy," the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association Wednesday almost unanimously approved a resolution calling for a freeze on the size and powers of the state patrol.

The association, which concluded its winter conference in Appleton today, also opposed a bill that would make seat belt use mandatory.

The association has a long history of unyielding opposition to increased state patrol authority, which is now limited almost entirely to traffic work. Proposed state legislation would give the patrol general peace officer status.

Eau Claire County Sheriff Arvin Ziehlsoff urged the sheriffs to vote against limiting state patrol powers. "Give this serious thought," he admonished. "What are we afraid of?" The former Eau Claire police chief, who is in his first term as sheriff, saw the patrol as well trained, organized and equipped. "We must work together, not at odds," Ziehlsoff said.

He said he didn't think he could justify the association's actions before any civilian committee interested in effective and efficient law enforcement.

Opponents to giving state patrolmen general police powers argue that law enforcement can best be administered from the local level.

In other action at its business meeting, the association adopted resolutions calling for:

—Establishment of Wisconsin Crime Laboratory satellite units in various parts of the state to facilitate investigation of major crimes.

—Making it a crime to have a police radio monitor in a private automobile.

A formal request also has been submitted to the city for a site in the northeast industrial park to locate the solid waste shredder.

Studies have indicated that the industrial park is near the center of the refuse tonnage generated in the county.

The request was referred to the council's commerce and industrial development committee. Ald. Roy Pointer (14th), chairman of that committee, told County Planner Robert Stadel this morning that he would call a meeting of his committee either next Monday or Tuesday and would then be willing to meet jointly with the county zoning committee later in the week.

In the letter to the city, the zoning committee said it had a particular site in mind in the industrial park, but that this could be changed to accommodate the city.

In other action, the zoning committee will seek a meeting with the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Local Affairs and Development to seek preliminary approval of the county's countywide solid waste management plan.

DeBruin still questioned whether a user fee system should be involved until the entire plan was put into operation.

Woehler suggested that if the county board wanted to it could commit federal revenue sharing funds to pay for the operation of the shredder for the first two years. "Then it would not cost anyone anything."

County Corporation Counsel William Schuh said he also felt the county could put the operational cost of the shredder on the general tax roll as long as outlying areas of the county were given equivalent solid waste disposal service by the county.

ticism. He has been under association contract for three years to produce Wisconsin Star and supervise its sales staff. He gets 35 per cent of advertising sales revenue, out of which he pays for writing, printing and mailing of the magazine. The Madison attorney also is paid to serve as the association's legal counsel and lobbyist, for which he received $7,549 (including expenses) last year.

There was a token attempt to close Wednesday's business meeting to all but association members. At least three newsmen were present. However, Check moved that the press be allowed to stay. Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice next won approval of his motion to allow everyone to stay in the session, explaining the "the association shouldn't have anything to hide from anyone."

Perina, whose address to conference delegates opened the business session, began by stating that the press used "a lot of misinformation about the magazine revenue-spending issue."

His attack on the press, particularly on Offer and the Milwaukee Journal, continued through most of his hour-long presentation. When he was done, Check criticized him for his dealings with the press. Most Wisconsin sheriffs have a good relationship with the news media, Check said.

There was no wrongdoing on his part in connection with the advertising sales for the magazine, Perina said. If there were problems, he explained, they could be traced, in large part, to John R. Hennessey, a Milwaukee man who Perina hired as a telephone sales solicitor for the magazine. Hennessey had told the Milwaukee Journal about the magazine's sales promotion activities.

Hennessey, who was under contract to Perina, left the business last March. Perina disputed a newsmen's contention that Hennessey was fired. He said Hennessey had "all sorts of medical problems" and was under mental and physical care. He said he had told a Journal reporter that Hennessey was a "completely unreliable" source of information.

Perina also blamed many of the magazine's problems on unrelated advertising solicitors who were misrepresenting themselves as representatives of the sheriffs association.

Based on a three-month investigation by the state attorney general's office, Perina said, the association might sign criminal complaints against unscrupulous solicitors. Perina declined to discuss details of the attorney general's investigation.

Perina said the magazine "stunk" when he took over as publisher. Since 1969, he argued, the editorial content has improved and it has become the association's major revenue producer. The association treasurer's report for 1972 shows that magazine receipts were $21,805. The net worth of the association is $38,560. The quarterly magazine has a circulation of about 3,600.

Perina said all magazine advertising sales are done on a personal rather than a telephone basis. The net result of the magazine controversy, Perina argued, has been a stronger association and "the magazine is as strong as it could possibly be." He said there had been fears that some incumbent sheriffs might lose office in the fall elections because of the magazine controversy, but those fears proved unfounded. The incumbents that were beaten lost for unrelated reasons, he argued.

Emergency PBS meeting

by JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — The board of the Public Broadcasting Service is holding an emergency meeting next week to weigh support for a nationwide public television hookup — financed without federal funds.

The idea stems from last week's resolution by the presidentially appointed board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting to take over programming decisions formerly made in large part by PBS.

In past years, CPB, created by the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, mainly served to pass on congressional appropriations to PBS while rarely rejecting its national program recommendations.

The corporation now is asserting its decision-making power in the wake of complaints by the White House and some congressmen concerning the objectivity and balance of some PBS public-affairs programs.

PBS officials who say they fear the corporation may become increasingly less responsive to the requests of public television stations now are moving to see if there are ways to exist without federal funds.

PBS currently is asking officials at the nation's 233 public television stations if they approve of PBS plans to study "alternative means of funding a national interconnection which would be directly controlled by the stations."

PBS officials say this would be a nationwide public television hookup financed by other than federal funds — money from foundations, private and public contributions and so forth.

They say it would permit the broadcasting of some public-affairs shows and other programs — paid for without federal funds — on a system that isn't financed by the federal tax dollars now provided by CPB.

If that becomes the case, would PBS still need the approval of the parent corporation for the shows? Robert F. Sherkkan, board chairman of PBS, doesn't think so.

"I don't think it would be a concern of the corporation since it would not involve their money," said Sherkkan, head of KLRN-TV, a public television station in Austin, Tex.

"Of course, you have to expect they are concerned — and properly so — with programs that appear as a result of the use of their funds," he said.

The full 19-member PBS board will see what support it has for its new network proposal when it meets Jan. 24 in San Diego, Calif.

Is there now anything in the Public Broadcasting Act that bars public television stations from setting up a national hookup that doesn't depend on federal funds?

"No," Sherkkan said. "As a matter of fact, as I read the legislation, it really encourages the corporation to assist others in setting up such systems."

PBS was created jointly by the stations and CPB several years ago as a network to feed programs to the stations and pass on program recommendations. Is it now trying to divorce itself from CPB?

No, I don't think so at all," Sherkkan said. In my judgement, we aren't looking for a total separation or anything of that sort. What we're trying to establish is that the stations have an inherent right to participate in the decision-making process."

Secolo Barocco

Baroque French quintet at UWO

OSHKOSH — For its third presentation in its Chamber Arts Series, the music department of the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh is presenting "Secolo Barocco," a group of French musicians, at the Music Hall of the Arts and Communication Center at 8 p.m. on Sunday.

The group's name means "the Baroque Century." Their program is devoted to playing works by Baroque composers, many of them seldom heard masterpieces.

The founders of the group are Michael Debost, flute, and Amaury Waliez, bassoon. The other members are Jacques Chambon, oboe, Jacques Francis Manzone, violin, and Joel Ferdinand Pontet, harpsichord. All won first prize at the Conservatory of Paris and are considered to be among the finest artists of their generation.

Secolo Barocco has been well received throughout Europe and also in Japan, where it recently performed.

The group plays works by familiar composers such as Vivaldi, Telemann and Bach, for example. It also plays the works of less familiar composers such as Leclair, Corelli and de Boismortier. All works are performed as originally scored.

Secolo Barocco has made two recordings. It is now on its first North American concert tour.

The unique composition of Secolo Barocco allows great flexibility in the choice of music. A typical concert will include a trio, a quintet, a sonata and a concerto, each using different members of the ensemble. Included in Sunday evening's concert will be works by Vivaldi, Leclair, Telemann, Bodin de Boismortier, Corelli and Bach.

TV Scout

'Mod Squad' better

Channel 11 8 If you haven't watched The Mod Squad lately, try it tonight. The stories have been getting better and tonight's is touching and important. It's the tale of a battered child but the problem is — who did the battering, the mother or stepfather? The Squad learns the truth, then arranges for a foster home. But the guilty, disturbed parent takes the child and it's up to the Squad to find them before the child is beaten again and perhaps killed.

8-9 Channel 5 — Jack Benny's First Farewell Special is an interesting concept. It serves as a pleasant framework for a star-studded variety hour. A whole raft of big guest stars helps Jack "retire" — Johnny Carson, Isaac Hayes, Joey Heatherton, Bob Hope, Dean Martin, Flip Wilson and Lee Trevino. The gimmick is that they are all there to wish Jack well as he retires but, of course, he's not retiring.

7-8 Channels 2-7 — The Waltons has another winner, a heart-warming love story. Jenny (Sian Barbara Allen) comes into John-Boy's (Richard Thomas) life and they fall in love. Then tragedy strikes and the girl cannot cope. But the warmth of the Walton family helps her over the crisis. This was one of the first scripts written but Thomas begged them to hold it until his real-life love, Miss Allen, would be free to do it.

7-8 Channel 5 — Tonight's Flip Wilson Show was taped on the comedian's 39th birthday and Jack Benny (who appears briefly to plug his special) and Flip had some off-camera fun about their mutual age. On screen, you'll see Howard Cosell as a judge of a baking contest, Sandy Duncan and Marty Feldman in some good skits, Taj Mahal (the "Sounder" singer) with some interesting music, and Flip with a variety of his characters.

8-9 Channels 9-11 — Kung Fu moves to this hour and becomes a regular weekly show, effective tonight. In some small western town, Caine (David Carradine) tries to find one of his fellow students, who is missing. There is something sinister about his absence. We learn, via flashback, of Caine's close relationship to Lin Wu. And we gradually discover what happened to him here.

8-9 Channel 38 — The cinema verite technique works well in the second episode of An American Family, a 12-week documentary focusing on the life of the William C. Loud family. The camera delves deeper into the lives of the individual family members as Pat Loud visits her son Lance in New York City. The mother's reaction to her son's life style, residence and friends and the son's complicated feelings toward his family are revealed during her week's visit. PART TWO

9-10 Channels 9-11 — Moving to this time slot, effective this week, is The Streets of San Francisco. On this one, there is a rapist loose, preying on girls he follows from supermarkets. He kills a lady cop, acting as bait, and her roommate (Brenda Vaccaro, who played a lady cop recently on McCloud) wants to be next to work on the case.

9-10 Channel 5 — Steve Lawrence and Dick Martin brighten The Dean Martin Show, from the opening "Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams" to the finale "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

2-7 — "Vertigo" 8 p.m.

Elderly able to audit classes at UWCFV

Students over 65 years of age may audit University of Wisconsin courses without paying fees, according to a policy decision passed last week by the UW Board of Regents.

The ruling, which will apply to students at the local University of Wisconsin Center-Fox Valley, according to campus dean, Franklin W. Doverspike, stipulates that students must show proof of age and fill out special audit forms. Consent of the instructor is also needed, as the sizes of classes are limited. A few courses may not be audited.

A university audit means that the student participates in the course without receiving university credit.

Although UWCFV classes began Monday, students may register through Jan. 26. Students registering late have been advised to contact a university counselor.

Actress Jane Fonda gets quickie divorce

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda has obtained a quickie Dominican divorce from French movie director Roger Vadim, court sources report.

They said Miss Fonda arrived here Monday under an alias and, with advance arrangements handled by a Santo Domingo law firm, obtained the divorce on Tuesday. She and Vadim were married in 1965.

Her attorneys here declined to comment on the ground the actress' U.S. lawyers had said she wanted no publicity.

Miss Fonda, who has been active in the antiwar movement, has announced plans to marry Tom Hayden, another U.S. antiwar militant.

Create sea monster from cardboard, paint

BY CAPPY DICK

A cardboard "sea monster" is easy to make by following these fun-project directions for boys and girls. All you will need is a piece of cardboard and your coloring materials—crayons or paints.

Cut the cardboard to the shape shown in figure one.

Easy to make representing the sea monster's head. For its mouth, cut a large opening through which you can slip your four fingers as in figure two. The fingers will serve as the monster's legs.

In coloring the monster use green for the face, black to outline the features such as the mouth, teeth, eyes and brows, and red for the eyeballs.

Place your fingers in position and, moving one finger at a time, "walk" the monster forward toward a mirror. Look at the mirror as you do this and you will be surprised at how life-like the monster will appear to be.

Have fun "walking" the monster across a card table toward friends.

Send for this Cappy Dick party booklet!

Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Cappy Dick booklets, P.O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Ill. 60642.

Air Force Band's only woman won't march

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force band's first woman member won't be marching with the unit at President Nixon's inauguration parade Saturday.

A few months ago Airman Karen Riale of Cedarhurst, N.Y., became a clarinetist with the 100-member band from Bolling Air Force Base here.

But now, according to the official inaugural program, Karen won't perform in the parade "because the Air Force hasn't finished tailoring the band's specially designed black uniform with white pinstripes."

Man conducts his own war against littering

DETROIT (AP) — For 33 years Bert Seyfarth has awakened at 4:30 a.m. most mornings to conduct a personal war against litter in his neighborhood.

After a quick cup of coffee, Seyfarth combs the neighborhood, checking side streets and alleys for discarded bottles, stray paper and anything else the regular city garbage collectors miss or litterbugs leave. He makes his rounds again when he returns from work in the afternoon.

The 62-year-old Seyfarth puts the trash in the trunk of his car, disposing of it in his own garbage or in large trash containers behind local restaurants.

"If people spent just one hour a week picking up litter," Seyfarth said, "we could keep this city clean."

His war on litter does cause some uncomfortable moments for his wife, Adele, however. "What must those trash men think," she asked, "when they see all those beer bottles in our garbage?"

Today's Woman . . .

. . . is a working woman. Contrary to the portrayal on television commercials, today's woman is not likely to be discussing "white" wash over the back fence or waiting for someone to ring the doorbell with her perfume and bath oil. Nearly half of today's women are working, and those in the home are scarcely sitting around manicuring their fingernails. They are less restricted, more enlightened and more involved . . . in clubs, civic affairs, campaigns, social projects and the like. Obviously, today's woman has little time to spend watching TV, listening to the radio or reading magazines. Today, she relies more than ever on the medium which she can peruse at her own time and at her own convenience . . . the daily newspaper. As to working women away from home, an independent source—W. R. Simmons—shows working women spend roughly half as much time watching TV during the day as when not working and 10% less time at night than formerly. No wonder the newspaper is the advertising medium which provides the maximum influence, most consistently, in her buying decisions.

Duels FVL, Cadets Xavier eyes climb

BY DAN VANDERPAS
Post-Crescent staff writer

"We're in second place now, but I'm not happy. And I won't be happy until we're in first place."

These observations were offered by Xavier Coach Gus Laemmrich, whose charges will be involved in a double round of Fox Valley Christian Conference games this weekend. The Hawks duel Fox Valley Lutheran in the Foxes gym Friday night, and entertain Premontre Friday night.

But Premontre Coach Tom Lemorande can't look ahead to the game against Xavier, since his third place charges have an important meeting with league-leading Pennings in the Brown County Veterans Arena tonight.

In other Friday night encounters, Lourdes will invade St. John, and St. Mary Central visits Roncalli. Saturday, the Dutchmen travel to Springs, while FVL invades St. Mary Central.

"We've been improving by leaps and bounds in the last four games," the XHS tactician said. Laemmrich doesn't go along with the notion that the Hawks are a one-man show. "Sure Schneider (Joe) is a fine ballplayer, but teams can't let guys like Jeff Hayes, Tim Sullivan and Pat Fitzgerald go. I think we're a well-balanced club."

Regarding Xavier's game against the Foxes, Laemmrich said: "We expect it to be a very big ballgame. If we're going to beat them, we'll have to get out there and play ball."

Dave Mauthe and Wayne Griesbach are still on the sick list and are listed as doubtful starters. But reserves Bob Mullen, Pat Verbrick, Tom Floodstrand and Rick Kewley have been doing a fine job in relief, according to the Hawks' coach.

Regarding the Pennings-Premontre duel, Laemmrich noted: "They're two evenly-matched ballclubs, but I would give Pennings the edge since they're playing in the arena. Pennings plays a more deliberate style of ball and they should be able to wear Premontre down. But from our standpoint, I hope Premontre wins, so we'll have a crack at first place."

Appleton East (4-3) will be trying to remain in the first division of the Fox Valley Association when it entertains a pesky Oshkosh West (3-4) quintet Friday. The Indians have given all opponents a tough battle this season, and they defeated the Patriots, 73-69, in the FVA opener for both teams.

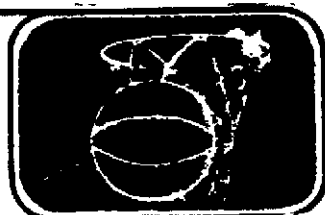

In other games, league-leading Kimberly (7-0) travels to Menasha, which is looking for its first conference victory. Kaukauna (3-4) duels Neenah (5-2), and Appleton West invades Oshkosh North (1-6).

Kaukauna's Reed Giordana continues to set the pace in the point-inning race with 161 points for a 23 point per-game average, while the

McCormack new coach of Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Big Mike McCormack has a big job in trying to make a winner of the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles.

The 6-foot-4, 265-pound former Washington Redskins assistant signed a three-year contract Wednesday as head coach of the Eagles, a team that hasn't had a winning record since 1966.

The Eagles of 1972 were next-to-last both offensively and defensively in the NFL's National Conference. The team finished last in the East with a 2-11-1 record, setting league record lows for total points (145) touchdowns (12), and average points per game (10.2). The team scored only two touchdowns rushing (one on a quarterback sneak), failed to win at home, and slipped from 32 quarterback sacks in 1971 to 16.

If that isn't enough for McCormack to contemplate, the Eagles suffered their worst defeat in the 39-year history of the team, a 62-10 drubbing by the New York Giants, a game in which fired coach Ed Khayat said the players quit.

"I expect to win next season," said the husky former Cleveland Browns tackle, who made the Pro Bowl squad six times while clearing the way for former NFL great Jim Brown. "I'm an eternal optimist." McCormack told his first news conference as Eagles' head man.

Eagles' owner Leonard Tose handed McCormack the job because he believes he's the man to turn the Eagles around. "I looked for a man with class, one who was associated with winning football, a good organizer, a guy who gets along with his players, and one with leadership qualities," said Tose of his six-week search for Khayat's successor. McCormack said he has the authority to run the Eagles' football operation, make trades, final say on the draft, anything connected with player personnel. He said he will ask for advice, but the final say is his.

McCormack worked for Paul Brown, the late Vince Lombardi and George Allen, three of the top coaches in pro football history. He said he hopes he brings with him Brown's philosophy of teaching and the ability of Lombardi and Allen to motivate players. "I hope something has rubbed off from all three," he said.

As Redskins' offensive line coach, McCormack developed the line that led the NFL in sacking quarterbacks. When he joined the Skins, the team's greatest weakness was its offensive line. He molded it into an area of strength.

McCormack played his college football at Kansas and was the first draft choice in 1951 of the old New York Yanks. He later was traded to Cleveland and played eight seasons under Brown. He worked in insurance, and as a part time assistant with the Kansas City Chiefs before joining the Redskins in 1966.

McCormack said his impression of the Eagles, based on three games against the Redskins last season, was that the team had as good a defense as the Skins faced all season up to the Super Bowl game against Miami. He plans to go to work on the sick offense starting with the Jan. 30 player draft.

McCormack was asked how he felt about long hair, mustaches and sideburns, a controversial area under former coach Khayat. "As long as it does not affect the football team's performance I have no objections," he said.

Lawrence University's basketball team opens its Midwest Conference home season this weekend. Friday night, the Vikings play host to Cornell. Saturday afternoon, LU welcomes Grinnell to Alexander gym.

The Vikings (2-7 overall) will try to climb above the .500 mark in home court play against the Rams (3-6) and the Pioneers (0-8). LU won one of three non-conference starts at Alexander gym.

pick in the first round. Because of their lofty finish — they tied with the deposed world champion Dallas Cowboys and the Cleveland Browns at 10-4 in the regular season — they will draft either 20th, 21st or 22nd.

The exact order will be determined by a coin flip Saturday in Dallas, site of the season-ending Pro Bowl, a ceremony at which President Dominic Olejniczak will represent the Packers.

Coach Dan Devine and his staff presumably are convinced a wide receiver is their primary need, although Devine thus far has sidestepped this question for the record, an understandable position because he has no intention of giving comfort to the enemy by divulging predraft strategy.

Practically, however, chances of acquiring a speedburning pass-catcher may not be overly bright, if indeed this be the Packers' avowed intention. By the time their turn arrives, most of the premium receivers well could be snapped up.

Lloyd Eaton, the Packers' tireless personnel director, admitted as much Wednesday in a general discussion of the NFL grabbag, to be held Jan. 30-31.

"Judging by past drafts, there isn't anybody who will turn down a fast wide receiver or a fast defensive back," he said, "no matter what their current needs might be. These are the players all clubs go after tough."

If this should come to pass, the Packer brain trust would be faced with the perennial poser, Eaton noted. "If there were a real fine athlete on the board at that time, then you'd have to decide whether to take him rather than a wide receiver who might not be just what you had been looking for," he said.

"And of course, both theories are usually pretty well represented on a coaching staff. Some coaches feel you have to draft to fill a specific position and others feel you can't afford to pass up a great athlete if he is available."

"Then the question arises: Do you trade him or do you try to fit him into your personnel picture somewhere?"

Should the Packers opt for someone other than a wide receiver, the logical alternatives, in presumed order of need, would appear to be a linebacker, a center or a defensive lineman.

Defensive Captain Ray Nitschke is 36 and Dave Robinson will be 32 in May, indicating age is becoming a considerable factor at linebacker.

Up front, Ken Bowman has turned 30 and, since he now is established in law practice, there is no guarantee of how long he will be available, particularly in view of the chronic shoulder problem that he has had to live with since 1967.

Russia's Olga Korbut, 17-yaer-old gymnast who won three gold medals and one silver during the Munich Olympics, has been named Female Athlete of the Year. She won the hearts of Olympic spectators and television viewers when she shrugged off a fall and continued to compete in a team event. (AP Wirephoto)

Gymnast named athlete of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Olga Korbut, the spirited sprite of the Soviet gymnastics team at the 1972 Summer Games, is The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year.

Miss Korbut, winner of three gold medals and a silver medal at the Munich Olympics, outpolled American tennis rebel Billie Jean King, reigning queen of the courts, 222 to 202 in balloting by sportswriters and broadcasters released Wednesday. Olympic swimmer Shane Gould of Australia was third with 118 votes.

The Olympic heroine, virtually unknown before the Munich Games, was hailed at the close of competition as being on the horizon of historic greatness.

"Olga is going places," said United States gymnast Cathy Rigby. "Undoubtedly she's their protegee."

But there now is speculation that the 84-pound, 4-foot-11 acrobat may never compete again. Miss Korbut suffered a back injury during a December workout and was reported recuperating at a health resort in the Caucasian Republic tubs.

Official Soviet sources said she was unavailable to discuss her injury or comment on being the first Iron Curtain athlete to receive the AP award since it was initiated in 1931.

Olga, a 17-year-old schoolgirl from the town of Grodno near the Polish border, performed in nearly flawless fashion at Munich in winning gold medals for the balance beam and floor exercises with scores of 9.90 of a possible 10.

But it was while competing in her favorite event, the uneven parallel bars that she won the hearts of viewers around the world—and lost a chance for two more gold medals.

With pigtailed flying, Miss Korbut flipped and flung with apparent ease, then fell to the floor in a heap. She was up in a flash and finished her routine then left in a flood of tears. The golden girl lost her chance for the coveted over-all individual honors.

The next day she tied East German Karin Janz with a 9.80 on the bars in individual competition. But the judges revised Miss Janz' score upwards to 9.90 to loud boos of the crowd of 12,000. Miss Korbut rose to the platform and asked for quiet.

She lost the gold medal but won the crowd.

Kilmer public dart board

DALLAS (AP) — No player has more incentive in Sunday's Pro Bowl than maligned Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer, who has become something of a public dart board because of his three intercepted passes in Super Bowl VII.

Kilmer was the butt of joke after joke Wednesday at a press luncheon, hosting the National Conference and American Conference All-Stars who meet in Texas Stadium.

"Kilmer, coach (Tom) Landry has given you your assignment for Sunday — you get to break up the wedge," said emcee Frank Gieber.

Alex Hawkins, former player for Pittsburgh and Baltimore, said "Billy throws a ball that's easy to catch. You have the option of catching it on either end."

Even Jack Scott, the Miami safety who intercepted two Kilmer passes to win the Most Valuable Player Award and an automobile, said "Billy wants an extra set of keys to the car."

Kilmer tried a verbal comeback, saying "I saw Landry's playbook and noticed the crackback is still in there." The "crackback" block used by Dallas during the regular season stirred resentment among the Washington players after linebacker Jack Pardee was injured.

But then Kilmer was intercepted again when he said about the Pro Bowl "I like being on any team with Larry Brown on it."

Redskin running back Brown had to withdraw from the game early in the week because of injury.

Kilmer said that he is trying to shake off the burden of being a Super Bowl goat.

"I have a lot of football to play yet," he said. "I will think about it, but I won't worry about it. If it continues to linger with me, I won't be much of a football player."

"We were one of two teams to make it (Super Bowl). We can be proud of that ... It would be a very big error on our part to let one game bother us the rest of our lives. By God, we got there. It wasn't a lost season."

Kilmer said of the 14-7 loss to Miami that for some reason Washington was emotionally flat.

"It always seems the Super Bowl is anti-climatic after you win the league title," Kilmer said. "I don't think there's really been a good Super Bowl played. Emotionally, both teams seemed to be out of it. This one didn't seem to feel like a regular season or playoff game, either."

Kilmer said Washington had excellent practices "but between Friday and Sunday, something was lost ... that old spark we had."

Frank Shorter named outstanding amateur

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Frank Shorter decided to take up long distance running two years ago in an effort to make the Olympic team, and the decision resulted in him being presented the Sullivan Award Wednesday as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete of 1972.

Shorter, 25, who prepared for his winning effort in the 26-mile Olympic marathon race by jogging with his wife, Louise, polled 1,895 points from 1,500 voters in the Amateur Athletic Union voting.

Second in the balloting was Olympic gold medal freestyle wrestler Dan Gable of Waterloo, Iowa, with 1,577 points.

Swimmer Mark Spitz, the 1971 Sullivan Award winner who claimed seven gold medals in the 1972 Olympics, was ineligible for the award because of a no-repeat rule.

Gold medal woman diver Micki King of Hermosa Beach, Calif., was third in the vote with 1,104 points, followed by gold medal swimmer Michael Burton of Sacramento, Calif., with 1,012 points and track medalist Dave Wottle of Canton, Ohio, with 708 points.

"Almost two years ago, I ran the Pan American trials marathon kind of with Munich (Olympics) in mind," recalled Shorter, 25, a Yale graduate.

"At that point I was just trying to make the team," he said. "I was running 10,000 meters at the time and I had never run the marathon before."

He finished second in the trials, then won the Pan American games competition.

"The way I run is I run as fast as I can the whole way," explained the New Mexico native who gave America its first Olympic marathon victory since John J. Hayes did it in 1908.

Injured Billie Jean forfeits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Billie Jean King, disabled by an inflamed joint in her right wrist, forfeited her first-round match Wednesday night in the $25,000 British Motors women's tennis tournament which she won the last two years.

Dr. Richard Garrett of Berkeley said the 29-year-old top money winner among the women tennis professionals would be out of competition for at least three weeks. He gave her a cortisone shot for an inflamed ulna joint after she had tried to work out Wednesday afternoon and found the wrist too painful to continue.

The six-day tournament at Civic Auditorium is the first on the winter-spring Virginia Slims circuit, which moves to Los Angeles next week, Washington Jan. 29 and Miami Feb. 5.

Marcie Louie of San Francisco, who won on the King forfeit, moved into Thursday night's quarterfinals against Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego.

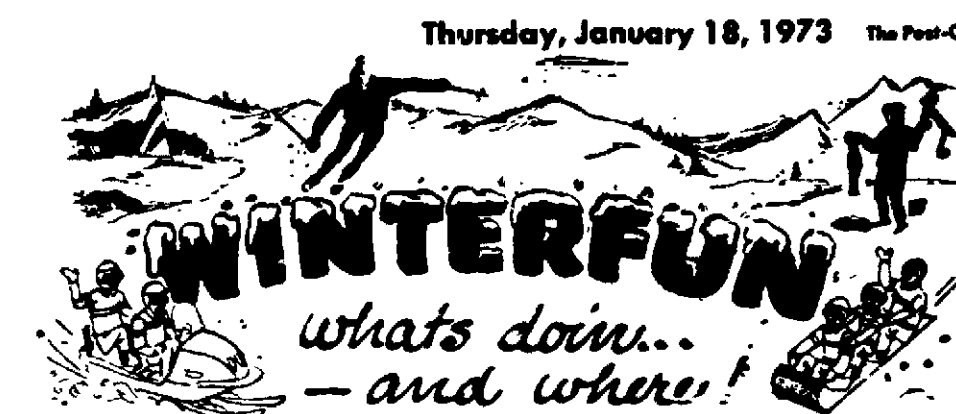

Miss Ziegenfuss, daughter of San Diego State's basketball coach, beat Karen Krantzcke of Australia Wednesday night, 6-4, 6-3. The Australian had trouble finding the range and pounded 16 shots over the base line to seven such errors by the San Diego girl.

Wendy Overton of Ormond Beach, Fla. was hard-pressed to get by Kathy Blake of Arlington, Va., 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 and gain the quarterfinals where she will oppose No. 2 seed, Margaret Court of Australia.

The second session of the Nordic (crosscountry) skiing instructional program is set for 2 p.m. Sunday at the Reid Golf course. Robert Simonson will be the head instructor of the session sponsored by the Appleton chapter of the Sons of Norway.

The first session — Jan. 7 — attracted more than 100 persons. Sunday's session will be graduated to reflect the current abilities of the student, so all skiers — including beginners — are welcome.

Among those assisting Simonson are three native-born Scandinavians — Markku Huostila, Frank Lofgren and Arna Maage — as well as Charles Buchanan, Larrimore Crockett and Dave Langlois.

Cross country skiers are being invited as guests of the Iola Winter Sports Club Saturday and Sunday to try Iola's recently established trails. The trails are three miles and 1.5 miles long. IWSC President Everett Aasen says his group wants to acquaint the public with the fun of cross country skiing and notes that the trails will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day and that all age groups may use them without charge.

Iola Trails, which will be the scene of USSA regional cross country meets Feb. 17, is located adjacent to Norseman Hill, five miles northwest of Iola on County Trunk MM.

Cards' Gibson signs pact for $160,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Star righthander Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals had a baseball contract estimated at $160,000 Wednesday and warned opponents that advanced age is making him "grumpier."

The 37-year-old Gibson, reached at his home in Omaha, Neb., said "I've been grumpier lately."

"The worst thing is the time between starts," said Gibson, who was again the workhorse of the Cardinals' staff with 34 appearances in 1972.

"It's so boring," the fireballing, quick-working pitcher added. "When I was young I used to jump up and down all the time, taking infield practice and all. I can't jump up and down like that anymore."

Gibson, who has twice been shelved by serious injury during his 14-season major league career, hinted only slightly that his career may be approaching a finish, however.

He said his financial investments in an Omaha radio station and as a board member of a bank being built in his hometown will be a factor in determining how many more seasons he will pitch.

Gibson last season recovered from an 0-5 start to post a 19-11 record which included an 11-game winning streak. His earned run average of 2.46 was his lowest since 1969.

The two-time Cy Young Award winner, whose 228 career victories top the majors, was reportedly baseball's highest-paid pitcher with a salary estimated at $150,000 until Tuesday.

Ex-teammate Steve Carlton signed a Philadelphia Phillies' contract for a reported $165,000, however, to outrank the Cardinals' ace.

Canadiens shake off injuries to win, 6-4

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pity the poor Montreal Canadiens, struck down by a series of injuries that has their dressing room looking like a hospital ward.

All-Stars Ken Dryden, out with a bad back, and Yvan Cournoyer, nursing an abdominal injury, were out of action for Wednesday night's National Hockey League test against Pittsburgh. And at least a half dozen other Montreal players including captain Henri Richard, were bothered by a variety of other ailments.

So naturally, playing in that weakened condition, Montreal only rallied for three third-period goals to knock off the Penguins 6-4.

Elsewhere in the NHL Wednesday night, Chicago staged a similar rally to overtake Detroit 6-4. Atlanta tied St. Louis 3-3. Los Angeles tied the New York Rangers 4-4 and California skated to a 3-3 tie against Toronto.

In the World Hockey Association, it was New England 4, Chicago 2, and Cleveland 5, Houston 0.

The Canadiens inserted Rejean Houle to replace Cournoyer and he responded with three goals for the first hat trick of his NHL career. The three goals gave him eight for the season.

Chicago also used three third period goals by Cliff Koroll, J. P. Bordeleau and Dick Redmond to overtake Detroit. The loss ended a six-game winning streak for the Red Wings and extended their losing streak against the Black Hawks to 14 games. Detroit has not beaten Chicago since April 1, 1970.

Mickey Redmond, Dick's brother, had two goals for the Red Wings while Bordeleau clicked twice for Chicago.

Larry Romanchych's third period goal eased amazing Atlanta into its tie with St. Louis and extended rookie goalie Dan Bouchard's unbeaten streak to nine games. Bouchard has not lost since Dec. 9 when the Blues beat the first year Flames.

Hilliard Graves' second goal of the game midway through the third period boosted California into its tie against Toronto.

Jim Neilson's goal with 1:22 left lifted the Rangers into their tie with Los Angeles. All four New York goals were scored by defensemen with Ron Harris, Dale Rolfe and Rod Seiling getting the others, after the Kings had built a 3-0 lead in the first period.

Gerry Cheevers recorded his fifth shutout of the WHA season and Jim Wiste scored two goals, leading Cleveland past Houston. The victory was the eighth in the last 10 games for the Crusaders, who ended a four-game Houston winning streak.

Kimberly reserves defeat Neenah

The Kimberly reserves dealt Neenah a 68-65 loss Monday.

The loss was the first of the year for Neenah, while Kimberly is 6-3.

Pacing Kimberly scoring were Gary Vander Zanden with 12, Bill Reed 12, Dan Valentyne 10, Ken Vanden Boogaard and Joe Wyngaard nine and Mike Verbeten eight. Larry Madsen hit 22 for Neenah.

Bobby Anderson has surgery

DENVER (AP)—Denver running back Bobby Anderson underwent minor surgery Tuesday, the Broncos announced, to repair a slight right shoulder separation. He recently underwent a knee operation.

Lucey pressed by cutbacks

Thursday, January 18, 1973 The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Menasha-Menasha, Wis.

A-3

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON—Is the federal government, having authorized after years of argument a system of sharing its revenues with the states and localities, now in effect negating some of the impact of that fund distribution by the categorical aid cutbacks ordered by President Nixon?

State and some local officials are worried, as a stream of their anguished press releases has shown lately.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey also pointed to the question in his first address to the legislature, reminding the lawmakers that one of the unexpected problems they face is the impact of federal cuts on state expenditures and the probability that the state may be obliged to "step in where the federal government has abandoned its post."

The governor listed some of the major funding cutbacks, in rural development, environmental protection, social welfare, and education programs.

The governor made clear that such Washington retrenchment may somewhat reduce the availability of state funds for his treasured objective of massive local tax relief, but he fell short of outright condemnation of the president's acts.

Lucey evidently is unprepared to criticize Washington for a pattern of expenditure control which he intends to make the major theme of the remainder of his own term under the guise of "austerity" in state finance management.

"There is a temptation in reviewing these steps (of President Nixon) and those which are yet to come, to argue that 'we've been had,'" he told the legislature.

"Such an argument is not completely fair. The economic constraints which the president faces at the federal level are similar to those which we have been forced to accept within state government. While some of us may strongly disagree with these particular cutbacks, few of us can argue with the need for effecting economies and administrative reorganization at the federal level."

But then he added that he is concerned about the social costs of such retrenchments, and the huge simultaneous cost of the Vietnam war.

"We cannot condone cutbacks in health, housing, education and the environment, without strenuously objecting to the outrageous and unending cost of the longest and most unjustifiable war in American history," he asserted.

Notwithstanding, the federal withdrawal, will generate heavy pressure for state fund replacement to maintain special service programs, and thus risks some reduction of the unprecedented prospect of a state treasury surplus which Democrats and Republicans in the state capitol had hoped to use to strike the most effective blow in Wisconsin history against vaulting local property tax levies.

An example is the worry of the Department of Public Instruction, which says that if prospective federal money cancellations occur, it will be required to dismiss at least 90 members of its staff and severely curtail special services in problem areas of the Wisconsin Schools.

Backers of those programs will inevitably turn to the legislature for replacement money as the federal government withdraws its aid. Some of them represent causes that many legislators will find it difficult to ignore.

One of the most difficult of the pressures will come from the reduction of declared, and expected, aid grants for water pollution abatement facilities which will sidetrack the plans of many localities under state and federal pressure for clean-up programs.

Another politically sensitive area of prospective retrenchment is in low and moderate income housing sponsorship of federal agencies. That question is of special concern to the Lucey administration, which had hoped to inaugurate the first state housing program of significant impact in the second half of the governor's term.

Utility bills under fire

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The state Justice Department has asked the Public Service Commission to establish uniform billing procedures for public utilities.

It also asked the PSC to review the practice of some utilities of charging higher amounts for late payment.

In a complaint to the PSC, Atty. Gen. Robert W. Watten said Wednesday seven utilities are using a delayed or late payment billing procedure known as "net and gross rate" billing.

Warren called the billing method "unreasonable and unfair," saying such practices "particularly penalize the poor consumer who cannot always make timely payments of the net rate." The net rate, Warren said, is the amount charged for services rendered of electricity or gas consumed.

The gross rate is really an interest charge which may exceed the state usury law's 12 per cent maximum, he said.

Warren asked the PSC to hold hearings throughout the state concerning net and gross rates, and to set maximum penalty rates for utilities which do not exceed the 12 per cent limit.

Seven utilities named in Warren's complaint are:

Wisconsin Gas Co., Wisconsin Power and Light Co., Wisconsin Natural Gas Co., Wisconsin Electric Power Co., Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. and Wisconsin Southern Gas Co. Inc.

GOP plans tighter hold on Senate

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An attempt by Republicans to strengthen their slender grip on the Wisconsin Senate has been described by Democrats as a deliberate challenge to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's programs.

Republican senators, who have an 18-15 vote advantage, finished plans Wednesday for today's assignments to a committee which would regulate the flow of legislation through the chamber.

Asked if the GOP was assured of thoroughly dominating the regulatory committee, Sen. Raymond Johnson, GOP majority leader, replied: "The votes are there."

Democratic Sen. Fred Risser, the minority leader, described the Republican move as a partisan lever that could throttle programs sought by the Democratic governor.

"This is even worse than the Assembly's rules," Risser said.

Republicans in the Assembly had protested two weeks ago when the lower chamber's Democratic majority adopted rules designed to curtail filibuster and give better control over the speed of bills through the house.

The GOP said the Assembly rules are designed to silence the minority.

Risser made a similar observation Wednesday toward the committee plan of the Senate Republicans: "There isn't even a minority membership."

Alterations in Senate rules were discussed by Democratic and Republican leaders Wednesday afternoon, after which each party conducted a private caucus.

Risser said the Democratic minority may be stuck with accepting GOP domination of rules, but "we feel that in two years we will be the majority party."

The Madison senator said the minority displayed solidarity during its caucus.

Democrats naturally wanted at least minority representation on all committees, he said, while Republicans demanded rules changes which would allow a majority to select any bill at will for action.

Senators, meanwhile, continued feeding bills to the 1973-74 session's agenda.

Sen. Clifford Krueger, R-Merrill, filed a bill which would prohibit utilities from acquiring land for generator plants without Public Service Commission sanction.

The measure also would regulate acquisition of land for power transmission lines and towers.

Krueger said the measure would require utilities to submit plans, outlining development plans 10 years in advance, giving state agencies an opportunity of commenting on environmental impact.

Krueger also is sponsoring a bill which would beef up the Natural Resources Department's control of air pollution.

Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, has filed a bill which would allow a Milwaukee couple to collect $3,934 from the state for the death of a son in a licensed foster home.

The bill, sent to the Joint Finance Committee, is designed to determine whether payment comes from the general fund.

Manitowoc asks okay of nuclear plant operation

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) — Federal officials are being asked by the Manitowoc County Board to approve full operation of both the Point Beach and Kewaunee nuclear power plants.

The board, which said operation has been held up long enough by environmentalists who "may not represent the feeling of the majority of citizens on the subject," voted 28-1 in favor of the licenses for the two Manitowoc County plants.

The panel said it has not been proved thus far that the nuclear plants along the shore of Lake Michigan would result in any ecological harm.

The Point Beach generator No. 2 has been licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to operate at 20 per cent capacity, but a commission appeals board has recommended that operation at 75 per cent be approved.

Milwaukee Madison takes AP poll lead

Milwaukee Madison, with a big assist from two area schools, has vaulted into the No. 1 spot in the season's second Associated Press ratings of Wisconsin prep basketball teams.

Madison, the Milwaukee City leader at 7-0 and unbeaten in 10 games overall, holds a four point lead over runnerup Waukesha in balloting by member sports writers.

Madison and Waukesha were tied for third a week ago, but advanced when Milwaukee Marquette's 38-game winning streak was snapped by Milwaukee Plus 48-34 and Milwaukee Lincoln was knocked off by Milwaukee Tech 62-45.

Marquette, first a week ago, slipped to third, four points behind Waukesha.

Lincoln, which recovered to beat Milwaukee West Saturday night, dropped from second to sixth.

Madison posted victories over Milwaukee Bay View 77-64 and Milwaukee Washington 75-55 to take a one game lead over Marshall and Tech in the City race.

Waukesha also won twice last week and was especially impressive in a 102-65 rout of Shorewood Saturday night. Guard Mark Delsman poured in 34 points for the Blackshirts, who pressured Shorewood into 34 turnovers.

Votes were compiled before Tuesday night's games.

Racine St. Catherine, which has lost only to Marquette, climbed from sixth to fourth and unbeaten West Bend West jumped from seventh to fifth.

Beloit Memorial slipped from fifth to seventh, followed in order by Wausau West, Manitowoc and Wisconsin Rapids Assumption.

Bloomington and McFarland remained first and second, respectively, in the small school ratings while St. Nazianz JFK, led by sophomore scoring sensation Mickey Crowe, climbed a notch to third.

Clemente fund hits $317,539

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Contributions totaling $317,539 have been given to the Roberto Clemente Memorial Fund.

Fund officials said the money included $57,539 from individual fans, $100,000 each from the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Richard Mellon Foundation, $25,000 each from a bank and a newspaper in Puerto Rico and $10,000 from the H.J. Heinz family.

The money will be used to provide relief for Nicaragua earthquake victims and to build a sports camp for boys in Puerto Rico in memory of the baseball great.

Clemente, the Pittsburgh Pirates' right-fielder, was killed with four other men in a New Year's Eve plane crash while flying supplies to Nicaragua.

Terrors' Carl Joosten is runnerup at 21.9 (153 points).

A double round of games is on tap on the Olympian Conference. In Friday night's feature duel, league-leading Valders (7-1) will play host to Freedom (7-2).

Jeff Ryan scored 25 points to lead the Vikings to a 77-66 win over the Irish when the teams met earlier this season. Both Valders and Freedom were defeated by Wrightstown. Valders suffered a 49-48 loss to the Tigers, while Freedom bowed, 60-53, last weekend.

Hilbert (0-8) will be looking for that elusive first league win against Reedsville (2-7) Friday night. "These kids have come a long way this season. They're hungry for a victory," Hilbert Coach Ed Pociask observed.

In their first meeting, the Panthers bested the Wolves, 81-43, but if Pociask's evaluation of his charges' progress is correct, the battle will be much closer this time around.

"In our last four losses, we were ahead at halftime twice," the HHS pilot went on. "Larry Defewitz and Rick Thiel give us a scoring punch, and Ken Kolbe and Tom Mirschberger are good on the boards."

"At the present time, we're working on defense. They're a team that likes to use the fast break, and we'll be trying to prevent it."

Shiocton's surprising Central Wisconsin Conference victory over Wittenberg-Birmamwood has enabled Bonduel (6-1) to gain a share of the lead with the Chargers.

Needless to say, Bonduel Coach John Reinke was "very happy" with the outcome. "I thought we were the only team that would have a chance to knock them off, but we're thankful Shiocton did it," he said.

A victory over Wautoma (3-3) Friday night would give the Bears the sole lead, since W-B is idle. In other games, Little Chute (4-3) invades Shiocton (2-5) and Manawa (3-4) duels winless Marion (0-7).

"Wautoma has a tough club and I thought they would be higher in the standings at this stage," Reinke observed. "Their top scorer, Hasselquist (Randy), is small, but quick."

The Bonduel defense, which has yielded an average of 46.1 points per league encounter, has been particularly satisfying to Reinke. "We use a zone and a zone press and it's been working real well," the BHS mentor noted.

Pete Koeller has added greatly to the Bears' scoring punch during recent weeks. "Two weeks ago against Marion, he scored 25 points even though he was sick. And Dave Berkahn has been doing a good job on the boards," Reinke concluded.

Barry scores 51 in Golden State win

Rick Barry came up with a sore shooting arm Wednesday night, so he only scored 51 points as Golden State defeated Houston 123-117 in National Basketball Association play.

Barry poured in 34 points in the first half for the Warriors, but his right arm stiffened during the intermission and he had a cold third quarter. His 51 points—which included 24 field goals—set a record for the San Antonio Convention Center Arena, where the Rockets are playing a number of their home games.

It also was Barry's highest scoring total since returning to the NBA after playing the past four seasons in the American Basketball Association.

Nate Thurmond, the Warriors' center who is acting as player-coach while Al Attles is out with the flu, scored 27 points and hauled in 18 rebounds.

Houston had seven players scoring in double figures, led by Don Smith with 21 points.

In other NBA games, Seattle edged Detroit 106-104, Boston whipped Portland 117-99 and Atlanta topped Philadelphia 122-105.

In ABA action, the New York Nets defeated Denver 102-92 and Utah tripped Kentucky 117-104.

Seattle's John Brisker and Spencer

Haywood had themselves a happy homecoming.

Brisker, a Detroit schoolboy, sank a pair of free throws with six seconds left as the SuperSonics nipped the Pistons. Haywood, who played at the University of Detroit before jumping to the American Basketball Association and then on to the Sonics, scored 18 points.

Brisker had 21 and Dick Snyder added 18 as Seattle registered its third victory in its last four games for new Sonics Coach Morris Buckwalter, who replaced Tom Nissalke one week ago.

Dave Cowens tossed in 35 points and grabbed 20 rebounds as the Celtics extended their winning streak to seven games. John Havlicek added 24 points for Boston, while Geoff Petrie was high man for Portland with 20.

Philadelphia led 91-89 going at the start of the fourth quarter, but Atlanta then reeled off nine straight points and was not in trouble again.

Derek settles for $1 million

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Derek Sanderson has some proving to do," says the attorney who got the controversial hockey player a contract settlement with the World Hockey Association's Philadelphia Blazers worth a reported $1 million.

The attorney, Bob Woolf, agreed that Sanderson emerged from the bizarre, unprecedented Blazers' negotiations with some what of a tarnished image. The hockey team bought up Sanderson's 10-year $2.4 million contract and gave him his unconditional release.

Woolf declined to disclose what the settlement was worth, but did say, "it was awfully high."

"In some respects," said Woolf at a news conference Wednesday at which Sanderson's cash settlement was announced, "he (Sanderson) didn't act the way he should have and I was somewhat disappointed in him. In reflection, he (Sanderson) doesn't think he acted properly. He perhaps didn't do some things he should have done. His attitude was not what it should have been. Derek has some proving to do and I think he feels that way too."

Woolf hastened to note that he wasn't downgrading his client, that Sanderson was a standout hockey player with a personality that would help some team. He said Sanderson was in Jamaica and would be back in two weeks to start looking for another hockey job.

Dean D. Dye, 23, 1122½ W. Spencer St., was fined $100 after he was found guilty of concealing stolen property by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Dye pleaded guilty to concealing three nightgowns valued together at $24.93 and reported stolen from the car of Bernice D. Olk, 87 N. Main St., Clintonville, while it was parked in the Prange's ramp on Nov. 20.

The defendant was taken into custody by store officials after he brought the package in for a refund later that day.

Gregory A. Huff, 20, 1625 N. Bennett St., was fined $150 and placed on probation for one year, after he pleaded guilty to one count each of disorderly conduct and marijuana possession Tuesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

He was arrested by Appleton police the evening of Jan. 4 in the 400 block of W. College Avenue.

A Jan. 28 nonjury trial was scheduled for a second man involved in the same incident. Scott L. Sievers, 19, 1406 W. Winnebago St., pleaded not guilty to one count each of disorderly conduct and obstructing police officers in his Tuesday appearance before Schaefer.

K-C chemists to speak at Lawrence seminar on industrial research Opportunities available to scientists and engineers in industrial research will be discussed at a Lawrence University chemistry seminar Monday, Jan. 22, at 4:30 p.m. in 161 Youngchild Hall.

The speakers, both from Kimberly Clark Corp., will be Dr. James Parker, project manager in consumer product research and engineering, and Dr. Richard M. Peterson, a research chemical engineer in the advanced development department, pioneering research, corporate research and engineering.

Both Parker and Peterson are graduates of the Institute of Paper Chemistry. They will present a case history of a fairly typical industrial production and process development program and use this as a basis for discussing the range of career opportunities in industrial research.

Parker, who graduated from Lawrence in 1957, and Peterson are coming to Lawrence as a part of the Visiting Industrial Chemist Program sponsored by the chemical education division of the American Chemical Society. This is the second year that the Lawrence chemistry department has participated in the American Chemical Society's chemical education program. The same society will sponsor an academic chemist to speak at a Lawrence chemistry seminar in March.

Lawmakers offer plan for late registration

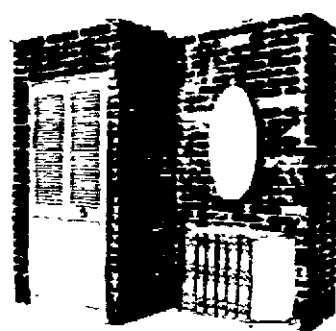

MADISON — The affidavits of two registered voters should be sufficient to substantiate the eligibility of a person who wants to vote but has registered too late to qualify, according to a group of Milwaukee Democratic legislators.

They have offered a bill that would substitute affidavits by such registered voters to replace the requirement of long standing state law that the testimony of two freeholders must accompany the late registration card of an elector.

Banker, family bound, slain

GRANDIN, Mo. (AP) — "The dynamite is under my shirt. They've got my wife and daughter. Don't make any telephone calls, you might trigger this dynamite," the small town banker told his employees.

A bizarre extortion plot ended when police officers found the body of the 43-year-old banker, his wife and a daughter bound to small trees near an abandoned farm five miles west of Grandin.

Each was in a kneeling position and each had been shot once through the head, Ripley County Sheriff Lewis Dawes said.

The slayings of Robert R. Kitterman, his 43-year-old wife, Bertha, and 17-

year-old Roberta Kitterman touched off a massive manhunt around this once-thriving lumber town 120 miles south of St. Louis. The FBI also entered the case because bank extortion was involved.

Two men were questioned by FBI agents but later released.

Kitterman, president of the Bank of Grandin, left with $9,811 after he entered the bank following the lunch hour on Wednesday and told employees that extortionists had attached dynamite to his body.

Officers alerted by bank employees said Kitterman drove west on Missouri 60. The Missouri Highway Patrol was notified, but it could not intercept the banker.

Dawes and two deputies later found the bodies of the Kittermans. He said there was no dynamite on the banker's body, nor was the money found.

Kitterman's auto and a car belonging to Roberta were both found at the death scene, and officers said a 32-caliber slug thought to have passed through the girl's body was located in a thicket near the trussed victims.

Although authorities theorized that the extortion plot began with the kidnapping of the three at the Kitterman home after Roberta finished her morning high school classes, the Highway Patrol said the house was not searched and appeared to be in complete disarray.

Mrs. Kitterman was assistant cashier at the family-owned bank. Roberta, a high school senior, worked as a clerk at the bank in the afternoon.

The Kittermans had two other daughters, Roberta, 13, and Patricia, 14. They were bound to small trees. High school classes were held at the home.

The Kittermans were not known to anyone in the area, and no one had seen them since they disappeared. The Kittermans were not known to anyone in the area, and no one had seen them since they disappeared.

Oil imports up in face of shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to avert a winter fuel shortage, the Federal Government has ended import quotas on oil and has boosted total oil imports east of the Rocky Mountains to a record high.

James A. Linn, director of the Federal Emergency Petroleum Administration, announced the decision to end the quotas on imports of widely used heating oil and kerosene. The first step was to lift the 1972 quota of 1,700,000 barrels a day. Linn said, however, that he could not lift any serious shortages through the rest of the oil year.

Linn said the administration has approved the first total import quota for 1973 of 915,000 barrels a day, rising from the 1972 quota of 1,700,000 barrels a day by about 51 per cent.

The West Coast import quota for heating oil was boosted from the 1972 quota of 800,000 barrels a day to 800,000 barrels a day.

Linn said the quotas might encourage importers who were saving the quotas to release them now.

Under the present system, importers must use up the total quota by a certain date, based mainly on their past imports.

Linn said the administration is studying other changes in the import system, including the possibility of lifting of additional quotas.

beginning in 1974.

In predicting the continued shortage, Linn said domestic refineries started hiking their production too late. He also cited bottlenecks in the distribution system, environmental restraints and a lack of natural gas as contributing to the overall shortage.

Linn said refineries raised fuel-oil output by 5 per cent in the last two months, after the administration pointed to serious shortages in an 11-state region from Colorado to Ohio hit by a cold wave.

Also contributing to the shortage, Linn said, was reaction to the government's freezing gasoline prices in 1971 at high levels and fuel-oil prices at low levels. As a result, he said, "we've been on a gasoline (production) binge all summer" while fuel-oil production lagged.

Aspokesman for Texaco, Inc., in New York welcomed the White House action as a practical way to ease the shortage.

Other oil industry sources said there are large stocks of heating oil in terminals in Canada and Great Britain that could be imported into the United States.

But Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a leader in the congressional drive to drop import quotas, called it "a stop-gap measure." Conte, whose constituency has felt some cold weather this season, said the "permanent answer to our problems is to scrap the oil-import quotas, finally and forever."

Haig continues explanatory tour

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. left Saigon today after two days of talks with President Nguyen Van Thieu, in the latest step in a diplomatic effort to end the Vietnam War.

Before returning to Washington, Haig was visiting Phnom Penh, Vietnam, and Bangkok to brief the governments of Cambodia, Laos and Thailand on the present status of the peace negotiations.

Haig was expected to still have negotiations about the protocols or framework agreements to bring the peace agreement into being, and some military matters also appeared still to be under discussion. This, Thieu's spokesman, Tran Van Lam said in Hanoi on Tuesday, Wednesday that Haig would return.

Haig's tour was said to indicate that the peace talks could be resumed.

Haig's meetings with Thieu appeared to be the way for another round of talks in the next week between Haig and Thieu, possibly followed by the signing of the peace agreement.

Haig's tour was said to be the first in a series of visits by Haig to the South Vietnamese government.

Chamber of Commerce that U.S. military strength in Thailand will be scaled down when the Vietnam War ends, but sufficient strength will be maintained to prevent violations of the peace agreement. There are now 49,000 American troops stationed in Thailand, carrying on the air war in Vietnam.

Unger said it will be "extremely important" that sufficient strength be maintained in the area, ready and available to deter violations of the agreement if these occur.

The draft agreement calls for a withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam within 60 days of signing, but there is no prohibition against U. S. forces in Thailand or against U. S. naval forces in the area.

Also in Bangkok, Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, the prime minister of Thailand, ordered his armed forces to go on full alert along the borders with Cambodia and Laos in the event of a cease fire in Vietnam.

South Vietnamese sources said among the technical problems that in their view need clarification is the one on release of prisoners of war.

The sources said Haig in effect also wants to lay claim to the territory captured by North Vietnamese troops or extended for 10 miles south of the demilitarized zone. South Vietnam wants the demarcation line restored at the 17th parallel, in the center of the DMZ, where it was prior to the North Vietnamese offensive last spring.

As other issues to be discussed by technical experts, these sources said, is the question of the release of prisoners of war.

Inaugural festivities under way

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reception for Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew this evening followed by a "salute to the states" signal the official start of President Nixon's second-term inauguration festivities.

Nixon, who is returning to the capital after six days at his Key Biscayne, Fla., home, will arrive too late to attend two receptions scheduled for tonight. His wife, Pat, is scheduled to pinch-hit for him at both events.

The President and Mrs. Nixon will drop in on three inaugural concerts Friday night. They will also make appearances at five inaugural balls following Nixon's taking of the oath of office at the noon-hour ceremony Saturday at the Capitol.

Meantime, backers and foes of Nixon's war policies laid plans to parade in force Saturday.

The inaugural committee estimated that 50,000 out-of-towners will come for the weekend's events, most of them for the swearing-in and inaugural parade.

More than 180 of the estimated 300 surviving Medal of Honor recipients from as far back as World War I will be honored at the inauguration, beginning with a luncheon today and at a banquet and the inaugural balls Saturday. The banquet will be hosted by one of Nixon's biggest donors, W. Clement Stone, and emceed by Bob Hope.

Meanwhile, embittered veterans from the war in Vietnam are arriving to participate in a protest march from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial at the same time the President grades from the Capitol to the White House reviewing stand. Their planned routes do not cross.

Demonstration leaders predicted tens of thousands of antiwar sympathizers would come despite reports that a cease-fire is imminent and that Nixon may have an announcement about Vietnam as part of his inauguration address.

Tonight, Mrs. Nixon is expected to stay briefly at the Agnews' reception at the Smithsonian Museum of History and Technology, then appear at the salute to the states and their governors.

The salute will take place in the rotunda and grandest of the federal buildings, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Nixon's younger daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, told reporters Wednesday in the White House that the President is looking forward more to this inauguration than the last one because he feels a sense of achievement... and that he feels not a minority president.

Senate gets bill to cut warmaking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators today announced a bill to limit presidential warmaking powers and require Senate ratification of all war powers the U.S. military bases overseas.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the bill is backed by a majority in the Senate, at least 51 senators.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said the two additional amendments to the bill would provide for a 10-day review of the executive agreement with Portugal for the use of American military bases in the Azores, and to deny funds to any country that is not a NATO member. The bill also would require the President to consult with Congress before sending U.S. troops to any country.

Time change advanced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional boosters of a plan to extend Daylight Saving Time to a year-round basis say their chances are better than ever because of increasing crime and the nation's fuel shortage.

The extra hour of daylight on winter afternoons would hamper purse snatchers and muggers who prey on late-afternoon pedestrians and it would reduce the use of electric lights in office buildings, they say.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., planned to introduce in the House today a bill to extend DST from its present six-month-a-year status to a fulltime basis. DST is in operation in nearly all the states from the last Sunday of April to the last Sunday of October. The bill would extend DST to the last Sunday of April to the last Sunday of October.

Lawmaker urges lower school age requirement

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill lowering Wisconsin's compulsory school attendance age from 18 to 16 was dropped into the legislative hopper Tuesday by Sen. Jack Steinhilber, an Oshkosh Republican.

"Keeping students in school against their will for two additional years does not help anyone," Steinhilber said.

"It is a disservice to the student involved, his classmates, and his teacher," the senator added.

Other bills offered on the first working day of the 1973-74 session would reduce the state's 4 per cent sales tax to 3 per cent, and create an inland lakes rehabilitation program.

Sen. Roger Murphy, R-Waukesha, filed the sales tax measure. He said it would cut state revenues an estimated $50 million a biennium.

"We have a $116-million surplus now," Murphy argued. "We're going to keep on having a surplus unless we cut taxes."

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has said the state has a surplus of about $108 million. He has suggested all of it be used for property tax relief.

Murphy said he was not optimistic about adoption of the bill.

But, he added, "This is a way to help the working man" who might not pay much in income and property taxes but who pays about as much as wealthy

MADISON — The city of Madison paused Tuesday to honor a hero.

By a unanimous vote, the mayor and City Council passed a resolution commending the lifesaving efforts of a 22-year-old University of Wisconsin graduate student, Allen G. Philipsen of Kimberly, who died in a Jan. 8 fire at the Allen Hall Residential Care Center near the UW campus.

Philipsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Philipsen, 438 S. Washington St., Kimberly, died from smoke inhalation after fighting a fourth floor fire and helping evacuate some of the nearly 80 elderly patients from the building.

The text of the resolution read:

"By the mayor and common council, it is fitting that we pause to honor a young man of our community, Allen G. Philipsen. He gave all that was in him give in the ultimate service to his fellow man. Rather than saving his own life during the tragic fire of Allen Hall, he gave it for the people in that building. We grieve for him. We honor his efforts selflessly given and memorialize his ultimate sacrifice. We extend to his family our deepest sympathy and our humble belief that he did not make that sacrifice in vain.

Resolved: The mayor and common council of the City of Madison and members of the residents of Allen Hall and all the citizens of Madison, hereby honor and memorialize the death of Allen G. Philipsen, a University of Wisconsin graduate student.

Philipsen, who was 22, was the youngest of four children and was attending the University of Wisconsin at Madison. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and was a member of the Alpha Chapter of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Waupaca names highway routes study committee

WAUPACA — A seven-man committee has been named by Mayor Ray Roe to study the pros and cons of rerouting state highways 54, 22 and 49 out of the downtown and school areas of the city.

Atty. Edward Hart will be chairman of the group. Other members include Ald. Edil Hutton (Dist. Eugene Spindt, Chamber of Commerce president; Roman Danielson, president of the Farmers State Bank; Thomas Cornely, owner of the Waupaca Cafe; Richard McDaniel, owner of McDaniel Studio; and Evan Giese, manager of the A & P store.

The committee will consider the petitions of residents living along the present routes within the city who have expressed their concern about noise and traffic hazards. It also will consider information given to the Board of Public Works by representatives from district highway offices, Wisconsin Rapids, and the views of businessmen.

The council has asked that the committee present its findings and recommendations this spring.

The council opened bids for a new dump truck for the board of public works. Three bids were received and the apparent low bidder was Wendt Peterson Ford at $7,874. The firm also entered a second bid of $8,199. Godfrey Equipment submitted a bid of $7,982. The bids were referred to the board of public works.

The council unanimously passed a resolution amending the contract the city has with Phillips and Associates, Inc., Kimberly, consulting engineers. It was briefly explained that the resolution authorized the borrowing of money for long range financing on proposed water and sewer expansion.

Ald. Vern Johnson (5th), chairman of the board of public works, told aides that the board with Director Walter Hein had been working more than six months on a plan to replace the city's water supply system with Phillips started in April, 1970.

Under that contract, it was the city's duty to replace the city's water supply system with Phillips started in April, 1970.

Hein elaborated that the consulting engineers will, under the new contract, provide resident representation on one percent cost basis. He said the original contract to the city had provided the city as much as $100,000 on a fee basis.

Ald. Waldemar Johns (2nd), chairman of the health and welfare committee, recommended the appointment of Mrs. Harriet Ward as chief director of the city. Council had accepted the resignation of Perry R. Jensen, effective Jan. 1. Jensen will be eligible for retirement March 31 and will be on paid part time for the city police department.

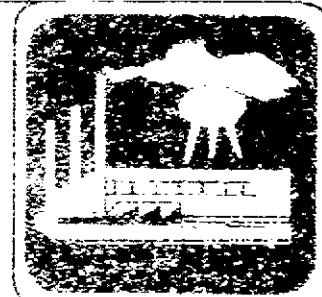

Mrs. Ward, who received a bachelor of arts degree in social work from Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., and worked in the field for 20 years in St. Paul, Peoria, Ill., and Green Bay, was unanimously approved for the post. She will receive an annual salary of $9,000 and will head the work in addition to her regular duties as city clerk treasurer.

The question was raised as to why a resident on the High Street water main extension had been waiting for two months to have water to his residence hooked up.

Walter Hein told council that four samples of the water sent to the state for analysis each showed a triphala count which is not acceptable. "We will flush the line in the area tomorrow," he said. "If the test still shows a high bacteria count, we will have to ask the contractor to dig up the line. He has the contractor's responsibility."

Opinion

THE Post-Crescent

Milwaukee provincialism

The civic and many of the political leaders of Milwaukee are fond of preaching to the smaller cities and towns of this state on problems and responsibilities, and there is perhaps no other voice in the metropolis that is quite as confident a purveyor of paternalistic advice as its press.

For years Milwaukee city hall and the politicians who govern in its county courthouse have made the solemn claim that what is good for Milwaukee is good for Wisconsin, and notably in the division of state taxes according to a formula that would most immediately and tangibly assist in the financing of its generous level of Milwaukee public services.

Now comes a curious example of the parochial spirit of neighbor Milwaukeeans on an issue that is as obviously statewide in nature, impact and significance as any that can be easily named.

For nearly 40 years Wisconsin has developed a progressive program reforestation and has fixed its cost to a state-levied tax on the demonstrable and even obvious ground that a resource development program that will benefit at least four-fifths of the state's area directly can be depended upon to provide gains for the state community as a whole. But last fall the county board of Milwaukee County in an obviously illegal and blustering act, announced that it would refuse to pay the Milwaukee County share of the forestry tax receipts into the state treasury.

The thoroughly specious and puerile argument of the Milwaukee politicians is that because Milwaukee County doesn't have forests, it should not be required to pay for reforestation, or forest management, or forest protection in other and more rural sections of the state.

Such a rationalization suggests a level of intellectual attainment equivalent to that which would be displayed if the county supervisors of Door County, as an example, would protest the apportioned share of their constituents of the state cost to combat air pollution because Milwaukee is a principal target of that effort, or if the thrifty citizens of Waupaca resisted their share of the state levies for various forms of public assistance which are primarily generated by the special problems of Milwaukee.

New County Treasurer Max Barczak of Milwaukee, a few days in office, is appealing to the county board to relent and to pay the tax. He may otherwise go to jail, he fears. The rest of the state may hope that even if the supervisors cannot see reason, they can sympathize with the peril of their political colleague.

Clements and nuclear policy

President Nixon's nominee for deputy secretary of defense, William Clements, is involved in a suit over Latin American mineral interests. But of more immediate interest to Americans, and Senators in particular, should be his statement about nuclear arms.

Under questioning by the Senate Armed Services Committee, which must recommend or disapprove his confirmation to the full Senate, Clements said he would not rule out the possibility of an atomic attack in Vietnam if peace negotiations failed.

The White House was quick to "clear up promptly any confusion" and said that Clement's statement must be considered in light of President Nixon's assurance that nuclear weapons are "not one of the contingent elements he will use in relation to Vietnam." Clements then assured everyone that "I am in complete agreement with the government's policy."

Obviously somebody was careless indeed that the government's policy was not known to Clements before his testimony. But there may even be a hopeful indication from Clement's ignorance. Is the use of nuclear weapons so completely out of consideration that the White House did not think it necessary to acquaint a proposed deputy secretary about policy?

Another indictment of prisons

Another study, this time nationwide, has been made concerning current law enforcement practices, especially the handling of felons. Some of its recommendations echo those made by a commission appointed by Governor Lucey in Wisconsin.

Emphasis should be shifted from large prisons to community-based rehabilitation programs, according to the report of the task force financed by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Incarceration itself should be used only when there seems to be no other way to protect the public. This removes the entire punishment angle that advocates of stern sentences consider a deterrent to crime.

More than that the task force placed the responsibility for programs to reduce crime upon local communities and recommended better government service delivery because "delinquency and crime occur with greater frequency where there is also poverty, illiteracy, unemployment." There were some more technical suggestions, such as doing away with the bargaining about pleas and the length of time between arrests and trials.

Here is another result of a study which dramatizes by its findings the disturbing realities in the nation's prisons. In a way it is encouraging to find that Wisconsin is not alone — in fact probably ahead of most other states. But the overall finding is that our law enforcement system is a failure, both as to preventing crimes and in rehabilitating the violators.

Unfortunately there is no place in the world where conditions appear to be much better. Crime rates in countries which have adequate records are rising and the rate of recidivism is high everywhere. But it should also be pointed out that nowhere in the world, except in small much more primitive countries, have the contrasts which poverty, illiteracy and unemployment offer in industrialized nations been avoided. In some more primitive societies penalties are harsh for certain crimes while other deviations are virtually ignored. The breaking of whatever taboos a society enacts seems to depend considerably upon the individual's relationship to his community and society.

It is for this reason that law enforcement is so difficult. In frustration we tend to try to deter criminal or unwanted activities with the threat of punishment, such as Governor Rockefeller is currently suggesting in New York. If we want to shut felons away and spend enough to do so, we may be protecting the rest of society. But this ignores rehabilitation or probably crime prevention.

The task force said that "it is becoming increasingly clear that the confinement of most criminal offenders, at least under present circumstances, offers little benefit to the offenders or the public."

More and more the studies point to a far deeper involvement by communities, government at all levels and individuals in the prevention of crime through improving living conditions and a redevelopment of standards of behavior. Probably things aren't bad enough for this to happen yet.

Risser is quarterback for Senate minority

MADISON — Sen. Fred Risser of Madison, floorleader of the state Senate Democratic minority, recently introduced this reporter at a public meeting with the remark that he has wondered why this space has never discussed his work during the considerable time he has labored in the legislative branch.

It was intended as a jocular little jibe, it may be supposed, but some persons thought that the smile that accompanied it was a little thin. This reporter has reflected upon the reasons for the complaint and the possible justification thereof.

One explanation may be that the business of the chronicler of political events tends to be close attention to the men who hold the power, and Sen. Risser heads a senate Democratic bloc representing a Democratic party that has not controlled his house in this century.

Quarterback for minority

As the quarterback for the minority, he is frequently on his feet and the volume of his speech is probably equal to that of all except a handful of the majority Republicans. But it is also a well-worn but demonstrable axiom of legislative politics that those who have the votes proceed to vote and those who do not have the votes talk.

It is possible that the Senate Democrats will one day soon take over the control of the upper house. They have gained slowly but regularly in the elections of the last decade or more.

It is a reasonable assumption, perhaps, that if the minority becomes the majority it will retain the services of Risser as team captain and spokesman. There is no evident reason to doubt it. Yet there is no certainty. In Milwaukee Henry Maier, now burgomaster, speaks with great pride of his days in Madison as the leader of a far smaller Democratic minority.

Yet those who remember his Madison experience recall that he was not truly elected. He rose by default. Gaylord Nelson, then serving the apprenticeship that soon brought him to the governorship and to a seat in the United States Senate, stepped aside because he saw no distinction or advantage in leading such a tiny troop of Democratic warriors against the entrenched Republicans.

These and other considerations may be involved in an inadvertent paucity of comment on Sen. Risser.

The fact is that he is one of the chief figures in the Capitol after a decade and a half of service in both houses. He is a hard worker who through a combination of circumstance and will devote more time and energy to his office than is parttime by duty definition than all except a handful of his contemporaries.

He descended from a long line of politically active ancestors. His father held the Dane County seat in the 1940s and once served as the floorleader of the old Progressive party when it was also a minority. Those persons who welcome the current development of the statewide non-commercial television network with state financing may be grateful to the senator's mother, one of the early campaigners for such a service.

A grandfather served in the legislature and led the early movement for a merit system of state government employment. A great-grandfather was a state legislator during the cataclysmic ordeal of the American Civil War, identifying himself with the Union party, a cause that was soon absorbed in the new Republican party.

Risser's speech is more earnest than eloquent. His feeling for humor, an enormous asset for the politician who has it, is not strong. Those who talk about his career with him tend to perceive, they think, a regretful doubt about his prospects. Obviously excited by politics, he has no discernible path of advancement.

For a Madison liberal to think of running against Rep. Kastenmaier, or Sens. Nelson or Proxmire, would be to invite liquidation by his own constituency. A judgeship? Perhaps. Yet he has the means to aspire, and no doubt will do so if he rises one day to the leadership of a Senate Democratic majority.

Thoughts at large offered by Harris

A quiet man who emits an occasional flash of wit earns more respect than a witty man who coruscates all the time and soon comes to be regarded as a mere entertainer.

The predominant tendency of human beings is to confuse the package with the product, the map with the territory, the symbol with the substance; as long as such gullibility persists, the few will prosper and the many will continue to be victimized.

In the craft of literature, unlike the pursuit of game, the surest way to miss the target is to shoot point-blank.

If you trace back a distinguished family tree far enough, you are more likely than not to find that it got its start by grafting.

Most people practice what they call morality for the sake of personal safety; but no morality is creditable until it becomes dangerous, uncomfortable, or uneconomic.

We shall never succeed in achieving "peace" until we understand that it is a matter of law, and not a matter of mere sentiment; peoples who live under different civil laws can never have peace—only war or an uneasy truce, depending upon their mutual feelings.

We know that punishing a country—as we did to Germany after the First World War—breeds resentment, and not guilt; why do we imagine that blindly punishing an individual works any better?

What every couple should be handed with the marriage license is an engraved wall-plaque bearing Elbert Hubbard's trenchant words: "Every quarrel begins in nothing and ends in a struggle for supremacy."

People who say of troubles: "Why did this have to happen to me?" never say of an unexpected boon: "Why did this have to happen to me?"—yet both are equally contingent and equally undeserved.

For honest tact, without lying, surely the award must go to W.S. Gilbert, who had to go backstage to see an actor friend who had given an especially bad performance; on entering the dressing room, Gilbert patted him enthusiastically on the shoulder and declared, "My dear fellow, GOOD isn't the word!"

Fifty years ago, Irwin S. Cobb put his finger on the grievance that has erupted into Women's Lib, when he observed: "Men are vain, but they won't mind women's working so long as they get smaller salaries for the same job."

Every rogue begins as a child by telling his parents he didn't ask to be born—as though anybody did.

Joseph Kraft

King Richard riding high

They're calling him King Richard on Capitol Hill, and given Mr. Nixon's new emphasis on executive prerogative, you can't say he didn't earn the title.

But what lies behind the royal style? On what meat, as Tom Wicker asked in the accents of Cassius, doth this our Caesar feed? The answer, I think, is nothing so trivial as mere personal affection.

The most striking mark of change in the President's behavior is his new attitude towards the outward forms of government. During the early days of his Presidency, every foreign policy problem had its day in the National Security Council. A high-level domestic council was set up to give internal problems similar innings. There was a game plan for the economy. For Vietnam, there was the Nixon Doctrine.

Cabinet not consulted

Now Mr. Nixon has given these appearances of due process a mighty kick. He undertook the murder-bombing of North Vietnam without even consulting the military chiefs. The recent radical dismantling of mandatory controls—a very tricky matter—was done without notification of leading cabinet members, and at a time that took no notice of the impact on the markets.

The President has repeatedly indicated that he expects to absent himself some from contacts with the press and the public. The major news of the recent Vietnam escalation was not even given out through press secretary Ron Ziegler. The word came out in dribbles from those household words, Gerald Warren, the deputy White House press secretary, and Jerry Friedman, the deputy press secretary at the Pentagon.

Another sign of the times is the attitude towards the Congress. Mr. Nixon has gone way beyond past precedent in refusing to spend duly authorized funds and in using executive privilege to prevent testimony to Congress by administration officials. A sign of how fast and loose he has played with tradition emerges in the matter of appointments in the foreign policy field.

If only to smooth confirmation, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is almost always given advance notice of such appointments. But this year the committee chairman and members had to read in the press about the nominations of John Scali to be Ambassador to the United Nations; of Kenneth Rush and William Casey to be under secretaries of State; of William Porter to be deputy under secretary; of John Volpe to be Ambassador to Rome.

Perhaps the most telltale sign comes with the reorganization of the government. No one here imagines that the government is going to be changed by the designation of super-secretaries to run various departments. The Department of Interior is still going to be run by the secretary of Interior.

Dizzy with success?

What is significant about the reorganization is that it restricts the number of people with the color of a claim to access to the President's office. Mr. Nixon will be able to conduct his business with a minimum of face-to-face encounters.

Because Mr. Nixon is so self-conscious about his leadership, there is a tendency to see all these developments in a psychological context. There is talk here that Mr. Nixon has been made dizzy with success by the size of his electoral victory. There is speculation that he is now getting back with a vengeance at those whom he has so long felt wanted to "kick Nixon around."

But my own sense is that a deeper purpose underlines the new style. Mr. Nixon has recently been warning against a let-down, and emphasizing the need to stay in peak form for the doing of great deeds. The great thing he has in mind has never been in doubt. He wants to undo the Washington base of the Democratic party with its concern for the urban poor and its bias towards the elite style of the Northern cities.

I think the President is holding himself aloof because he senses that contact with the Congress, and the press and the public, compromises that grand design, muddies the clear picture he has in his head. I think he is probably right in that perception. So I believe that the shape and style of government in America, and the preservation of cherished values, now hinges on the efforts of the Congress and the press to bring Mr. Nixon back to the give-and-take of normal American politics.

New London council accepts bid for truck despite objections

NEW LONDON — The City Council Tuesday night accepted a low bid of $6,565 from Volz Chevrolet for a 24,000-pound stake truck despite objections by three aldermen that the bid did not meet the city's specifications and should be rebid.

In recommending that the council accept the bid instead of one by Freiburger's Inc., the board of public works noted that neither bid met the specifications they had requested. While the board had asked for bids with a 14-inch clutch, both bidders used a 13-inch clutch. Other items on the trucks that didn't meet specifications were the battery, alternator and springs.

Since both bidders failed to meet the minimum specifications, Ald. Jerome Freiburger (4th) proposed that the truck be rebid. He pointed out that if the Dodge from Freiburgers would have been bid with a 318-cubic-inch engine, less than specified, Freiburger's would have been the low bidder. Volz bid a 350 engine.

Ald. Wilford Cupp (3rd), chairman of the board of public works, said the main item of interest for the city was the strength of the springs, and that while the Dodge springs were lighter than specified, the Chevvy springs met specifications.

Freiburger, the parts manager at Freiburger's, said that "the truck you want to buy doesn't even meet your specifications — but I suppose I'm the wrong one to bring that up."

The motion to rebid the trucks failed 7-3, with Ald. Al Weeden (3rd) and Ald. Dona Genske (5th) joining Freiburger. The motion to purchase the vehicle from Volz was approved by the same vote.

In other business, aldermen referred to the planning commission a request that property on the east end of E. Pine Street be zoned from R-1 to an R-2 area. Stanley Contrill requested the change so an eight-unit apartment complex can be built in the area.

The council also accepted bids for gasoline and fuel oil. The items had been rebid after no bids were received after the council's initial advertising. The gasoline bids, as well as bids for furnace fuel oil and diesel fuel, were granted to Standard Oil Co.

Gasoline will cost 14.52 cents a gallon, up from last year's 12.105, furnace oil will cost 17.9 cents a gallon, up from 13.2 cents; and diesel fuel will cost 18.9 cents, up from 14.2 cents a gallon last year.

Also approved was the purchase of a pressure washer to wash city trucks and their frames. Aldermen accepted the board of public works proposal to purchase from the higher bidder, since they felt it was a better machine and could be used more economically. The action washer will cost $743, while the low bid for a hydro-washer was $675.

The public property committee was authorized to purchase a gas pump at $253 for the city sheds, to replace one that is worn out.

The committee also received authority to buy eight 3-by-6-foot carpets for the entrances to the municipal building. The rugs, for $224, will replace rental carpets the city gets for $30 a month.

The council also approved the appointments of Orville Johnson, 419 W. Jennings St., to the New London Housing Authority, and Jerome Zaig of 207 E. Beacon Avenue and Alvin Schoepke of 403 S. Shawano St. as alternates to the board of appeals.

Francis Lebeau of 102½ W. Wolf River Avenue has been hired as the sanitary landfill operator.

Mayor Herman Gagnow has been elected a district vice president for the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, it was reported.

Waupaca plans move to its new high school

WAUPACA — The personnel committed of the board of education met with Waupaca Teachers Association delegates Tuesday and revised the spring schedule to facilitate the move into the new high school the first week in June.

The proposed revision will be submitted for approval to the full board on Feb. 13. John Gusmer, personnel committee chairman said today.

"In our earlier planning, Jan. 22, the semester's end had been the target for moving to the new high school. It will now be a teachers' work day and a day off for the students," he said.

Red and White activities set at Brillion High

BRILLION — Annual Red and White Day activities are slated for Friday and Saturday at the high school.

The weekend events include a half time performance by the gymnastics team during the Friday junior varsity basketball game, followed by a special pompon performance during the varsity game against Denmark. Games begin at 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Special recognition will be given Saturday during the varsity game against Mishicot to parents of the varsity of JV basketball players, statisticians, managers and cheerleaders. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria to parents, players and cheerleaders after the game. Gametimes are the same as Friday.

The Red and White dance will begin after the varsity game Saturday and will be highlighted by crowning of the Red and White Queen at 11 p.m.

The weekend activities are sponsored by the Pompon Girls under the direction of Mrs. Jacqueline Konop, adviser.

The move to the new high school will be made the first week in June, allowing maximum time for transfer of junior high school equipment and classrooms into the old high school building, Gusmer said. This will allow ample time for cleaning up each facility and getting ready.

"We are proposing that baccalaureate be moved to May 20, graduation to May 24 and the last day for students May 25," he continued. "May 29 will be a teachers' work day and we are holding May 29, 30 and 31 for makeup if there are snow days. So far this year we have not had school closed on any day because of heavy snow."

There will be holidays for students and teachers on April 13, when the Wisconsin Educational Association holds its annual meeting; on Good Friday, April 20, and Easter Monday, April 23.

Bankers begin search for top farm family

CLINTONVILLE — The Progressive Farmer Awards Program, scheduled for mid-March, will get under way officially Tuesday when Waupaca County bankers meet here with the 27 judges who will select farm families for recognition.

Within the next five weeks, the judges will divide up into nine area teams, visit farms to review progress individual farmers have made in resource management, land use, livestock husbandry and community service, said Dennis Carter, Clintonville National Bank, chairman of this year's awards program.

One farm family from each of the county's nine trade areas — Iola, Marion, Clintonville, Scandinavia, Manawa, New London, Waupaca, Weyauwega and Fremont — will be honored at the awards dinner.

One of the nine area winners will be named Farmer of the Year and will receive a $50 savings bond from the Waupaca County Bankers Association, he added.

All farm families visited by the judging teams will be guests of the bankers at the awards day dinner.

Four Hilbert students to attend music event

HILBERT — Four music students from the high school here will participate in the Dorian Vocal Music Festival at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, this weekend.

Guest conductor for this 23rd. annual event will be Prof. Morris D. Hayes, director of choral activities, University

Snowmobile club outing

DALE — Nearly 100 members of the Dale Trailblazers Snowmobile Club spent a recent three-day weekend snowmobiling in the Three Lakes, Wis., area.

The weekend of snowmobiling in the Nicolet National Forest in Oneida County was arranged by the club's entertainment committee and Mrs. Adrian Sommer of Dale.

The group rode for a total of 200 accident-free miles, they said.

This will be the 22nd year Waupaca County bankers pay tribute to local farmers for a job well done. The Waupaca County program is one of the oldest of its kind in the nation and has been the model for banking associations who wish to encourage modern agricultural techniques and conservation practices that make farming profitable, according to County Agent Joe Walker and Soil Conservationist Kenneth Halverson, who assist with the program.

Judges this year are: Harlan Loken, Reuben Rambo and Stanley Bickley, Iola; Marvin Hintz, Howard Seefeldt and Stanley Jueds, Marion; Harold Johnson, Dale Kluth and Warren Hanson, Clintonville; Norman Sannes, Phillip Nygaard and Norman Johnson, Scandinavia; Ronald Herman, Roger Bonikowske and Lester Miller, Manawa; Richard Russ, Allen Nysse and William Faskell, New London; Elwood Eisentraut, Doddridge Brooks and Richard Piechowski, Waupaca; Jerome Zabel, Alvin Thiel and David Harfiel, Weyauwega; and Carl Steinbach, Alvin Krenke and Raymond Spiegelberg, Fremont.

of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. Hayes is a noted choral leader and is presently serving as national president of the American Choral Director's Association.

Participating students here have been preparing for the concert numbers for the past several weeks with their director, Jay Jensen, who will also attend.

In addition to their rehearsals and performance, the students will also see other aspects of campus life and of the music program at Luther College. This includes a faculty voice recital, students' choral concerts, and a student performance of the musical play "The Fantastiks."

Shiocton schools to be dismissed Friday

SHIOCTON — Classes will not be conducted Friday in the public schools. The break will mark the end of the first semester. Teachers will report as usual to make out report cards and plan for the second semester. Report cards will be given out Jan. 26.

Watershed

vation Board commented, "The philosophy of Public Law No. 566 is helping out each other. Sometime somebody will help and not receive any benefits. However in this case, everyone in the entire state will benefit. If the decision is delayed, the project will increase in cost from 6 to 10 per cent each year."

There are still questions to be answered on certain portions of the watershed, primarily the bridges and channel to the west.

The Chicago and North Western Railroad currently is handling very limited rail service west of the city. Some committee members feel that industry could be served in another way and the cost of building a $55,000 bridge for two trips per week maximum is not warranted. Travel speed in some sections is limited to 5 m.p.h. because of the poor condition of the road bed.

The Ariens Co. also is opposed to the creation of the floodway and to the bridge projects. The company recently announced an extensive ditching project to alleviate drainage problems. All land rights have been secured and the company has agreed to pay all costs involved except a small amount of ditching off Ariens property, which would cost the city approximately $1,100.

They would also maintain the entire system. The project would drain an estimated 200 acres. The Ariens proposal would be in the same general area though not as large as the plan included as part of the watershed.

Deleting that portion of the project would bring the costs down from $230,000 to $70,000.

A committee meeting has been scheduled for Friday.

wife, the former Leone Lisowe, to whom he was married in 1927.

He sold the business in 1960 to his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Meier, but still maintains an interest in helping.

The Meiers' son, Scott, recently received the National Poultry Science Award. Herzog was the recipient of the award in 1970.

Although away from the immediate business of the state and national turkey organizations, he remains a director in both groups. He is also active on the marketing and insurance committee of the Turkey Federation, and is a director of the Wisconsin Innkeepers Association.

Through the years, Herzog has maintained a special interest in dancing and he and his wife have entered numerous competitions.

During Wednesday's program, new officers of the Chamber of Commerce were installed. John R. Mortimer is the new president. Ralph Hertel, first vice president, Patrick Meier, second vice president, J. E. Sohrweide, secretary, and Mert Prouty is treasurer. William Rogahn is past president.

New directors are Rod Rautmann, Robert Hipke, Robert Voight and Ron Corb.

Recreation office set up at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — A consolidation of the park and recreation operations has been completed with the office of Earl J. Carlson, director of parks and recreation, moved to the building on Seventh Street used formerly as the Youth Center.

The building will be redesignated as the Clintonville Community Center and will be available for use by groups of all ages. Reservations must be made one week in advance with the director.

All department recreation and public service programs will be based at the Community Center. Regular office hours will be from 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. All registrations for facility usage and program participation will be taken during these hours. If necessary, messages may be left with the city clerk.

This change is expected to decrease expenses and increase service in the department, and to improve its efficiency. The cost of maintaining the separate office at 37 S. Main St. is now eliminated, and the hours of operation and scope of service at the Community Center are expanded.

Capsules are counterfeit

A Jan. 2 drug raid, termed then by authorities as the "biggest drug crack-down in Outagamie County history," apparently wasn't quite that spectacular. Dist. Atty. John Ensley said Wednesday that the 13,000 seized capsules turned out to be caffeine instead of amphetamines (speed).

Ensley said the exact determination of the capsules' contents was made last week by the State Crime Laboratory in Madison. While amphetamines are controlled, or illegal, substances, caffeine is a legal stimulant found in coffee and some other products.

"What happened is that our men administered a proper test and got a positive reaction, one which would react positively to both caffeine and amphetamines," Ensley said. "But they didn't go the one test further to determine whether the substance was caffeine or amphetamines."

The finding had an immediate effect, as charges filed against one of the two men at whose residence the pills were found were reduced Wednesday.

Richard Wiegand, 26, of 124 N. Green Bay Road, appeared before Judge R. Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where amphetamine

New London Jaycees to mark club founding

NEW LONDON — Mayor Herman Gagnow has proclaimed next week as Jaycee Week. The annual observance coincides with national Jaycee Week.

The observance commemorates the founding of the club and the annual selection of a local Outstanding Citizen.

Harry Emans, former mayor and executive director of the New London Housing Authority and retiring executive secretary of the New London Chamber of Commerce, received the award at a recent ceremony.

possession and sale charges were reduced to promising to deliver amphetamines, with delivery of non-controlled substances.

The original charge is a felony, carrying a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $15,000 fine, while the amended charge is a misdemeanor, carrying a maximum $500 fine and six months in jail.

Care reduced Wiegand's bond from $5,000 to $500 and continued the case to Feb. 2.

Similar amendment of amphetamine charges is expected Monday for Charles Ziembra, 23, also of 124 N. Green Bay Road. Both Ziembra and Wiegand are charged with maintaining possession in addition to the amphetamine charge.

Authorities have not stated whether the two men acquired the 13,000 capsules under the impression that they contained amphetamines or whether they knew they contained caffeine.

School board officials call for strict policy against teacher strikes

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Teachers who participate in strikes should be subject to penalty, the Wisconsin Association of School Boards said Wednesday.

Delegates to the association's three-day convention also reviewed suggestions that students be allowed membership on boards of education.

School officials discussed walkout threats by more than 5,000 Milwaukee teachers earlier this month, and compared notes on the recent history of illegal school walkouts elsewhere in the state.

Delegates adopted a resolution, recommending action against teachers who participate in work stoppages. Statutes prohibit strikes by public employees.

The resolution encountered little opposition. A delegate said the association should demand antistrike action "even more severe than severe."

The resolution did not contain a recommendation of the type of penalty. A resolution adopted 160-159 recommended school boards attempt to enroll students as nonvoting members.

Stacy Barker, a school board official from New Berlin, questioned the idea, referring to students as children.

He said they would simply be "special interest representatives."

"I just don't see how a high school student can help us," Barker said, asking whether a teen-ager could contribute adequately.

Another delegate said that if a student has something to contribute, he "can speak up like everyone else during an open meeting."

Opposition to the resolution was challenged by Gary Weiss, 17, a high school representative on Madison's school board.

"I am disturbed by some of the comments made about me as a child," he said, noting legislators have reduced the statutory age of adulthood to 18.

"It concerns me that some people are scared that we are threatening their power," he said. "They think we are threatening their authority."

By giving students access to board membership, he reasoned, adults would show they "have open minds."

Delegates endorsed suggestions that students be tested more thoroughly to determine their classroom needs.

Screening was censured by some delegates who said the process consumes too much time, manpower and money, and that too often students are shuffled to special classes simply to fulfill a school's application requirement for seeking government program funds.

The resolution called for compulsory screening, carried out by "professional employees, designated by the school" with the intention of "a special attempt at mainstreaming exceptional children into regular programs."

The convention also proposed that state aid for special handicap programs be paid in advance.

Delegates objected to suggestions for eliminating class rank systems and for assigning ward-like numerical designations to school board positions for election purposes.

Nixon plotting radical trade legislation shift

WASHINGTON—With the typical secrecy that marks all his grand surprises, President Nixon is moving toward a radical shift in trade legislation which would permit a temporary raising of tariffs on foreign imports threatening American industries.

The tariff-raising scheme, now being studied by White House trade adviser Peter Flanagan, is designed as a short term safeguard—up to perhaps five years—for domestic industries facing economic disaster from low-cost foreign imports.

It would be sold to Congress as a radical new form of adjustment assistance, a government subsidy program invented by the Kennedy administration to help imperiled industries and their workers "adjust" to foreign competition threatening their survival.

With AFL-CIO president George Meany and other moguls of big labor now engaged in a major battle to get Congress to pass the highly-protected Burke-Hartke trade bill, President Nixon is searching for some way to blunt the impact of cheap foreign imports without reversing his own—and the nation's—liberal trade policies of the past four decades.

Ridiculed by Meany
The Kennedy-era adjustment assistance is ridiculed as worthless by Meany. The Nixon plan now under study by the White House and Secretary of the Treasury Shultz, Mr. Nixon's new international trade czar, goes much farther.

The plan would work as follows: The President could raise the tariff on imported goods to a point that would enable the higher-cost domestic product to compete and leave it at that high level for one year. In the second, third, fourth and fifth years, the tariff would be gradually reduced back down to its original level.

That would give the threatened industry five years to experiment with diversification, new technology and other cost-saving devices in an effort to make its operations economically competitive, or phase out.

The second prong of Nixon's new trade program is congressional authority for reciprocal reduction of existing tariffs over a long-range period. All the tariff-lowering authority in the Kennedy Trade Agreements Act of 1962 has now been used up.

Protectionist mood
With the new Congress sniffing an undeniably protectionist mood throughout the nation, the tariff-raising scheme has the built-in attraction of giving Meany and the labor unions real but short-term protection without recourse to quotas, a major feature of the Burke-Hartke bill. An absolutely exclusionary device, quotas are far less acceptable to Japan and western Europe than tariffs.

The obvious danger of the Nixon plan is retaliation from major U.S. trading partners. Yet, the administration's plan for short-run higher tariffs in a few danger areas might be the minimum price for long-range, tariff-cutting powers from Congress. Traditional backers of liberalized trade in Congress who have heard about the administration's plan would back it.

Last week, with Phase III of the anti-inflation program out of the way, the President instructed Shultz to move full speed ahead on the extraordinarily complex question of international trade.

Costly delays
Even so, some White House advisers privately criticize the President and his White House staff for costly delays in shaping his trade program and getting it up to Congress. Western European countries and Japan are now expecting to start trade negotiations with the U.S. next September.

But with no tariff-cutting authority left over from the 1962 Kennedy round, Mr. Nixon's negotiators will have nothing to negotiate with unless Congress gives him new authority. Moreover, neither the President nor Shultz has yet given Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and the most influential congressional voice on trade, any clear idea of what Mr. Nixon wants from the new Congress in the way of trade legislation.

Thus, the tentative decision to deal with the politically-hot issue of low-cost foreign competition by asking for temporary tariff-raising powers may mark the essential policy breakthrough.

Trade classes listed at FVTI

The Fox Valley Technical Institute trades and industry department has listed two short-term courses.

An eight-session quality control course will be conducted from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning Jan. 24. A 10-session electrical discharge machining course will be from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays, starting today.

The latter is the first course of its kind in the Valley and is for students who have knowledge of basic machining principles and are able to make their own setups and perform operations on the engine lathe, milling machine, drill press and bandsaw.

The course covers basics of EDM, dielectrics and flushing techniques, electrode fabrication, EDM power supplies, and special applications of EDM. The course will be most practical to those in the tool and die field and those involved with difficult to machine materials.

The quality control course is sponsored jointly by the FVTI and the Winnebago Section of the American Society for Quality Controls.

Course content includes cost of quality, process of quality control, interpretation of the average and range chart, process capability, product quality control, fundamentals of sampling, and what sampling plans will and will not do.

Richard Schmidt is the coordinator for both programs and further information is available from him.

Phase 3 will hike cost of borrowing

Q. What will be the key weapon with which the U.S. will try to fight the danger of accelerating inflation in this new phase of drastically reduced price-wage controls?

A. Tighter credit and higher interest rates—the weapon which has been tops in the anti-inflation arsenal all along. This means that you'll find it harder and more expensive to get the loans you need and want to finance all the things you want to do, buy all the products and services you want to buy, build all the projects you want to build.

Q. But don't higher borrowing costs add to the cost of living?

A. Certainly, they do. This classic anti-inflation weapon is in itself a contributing factor to inflation. Higher mortgage rates on a home mortgage or stiffer interest rates on a personal or business loan are as much a part of living costs as higher prices on a pound of steak (and they last a lot longer, too).

Q. That doesn't make sense.

A. In the traditional economic textbooks, it does. In simplest, perhaps oversimplified language, this is the basic tale and theory. There are two types of inflation. One is the type in which rising costs (primarily labor costs) push up prices and it is called cost-push inflation. This is the inflation we've been battling for years.

The second is the type in which rapidly rising demands for goods and services pull up prices and it is called demand-pull inflation. To fight demand pressures, the theory holds that it is imperative to cut your capacity and willingness to borrow money—which means that the Federal Reserve System must curb the supply of credit in the banking system and in the process, make credit more expensive.

The fundamental point is the availability of credit. Most borrowers will pay a tolerable price (interest rate) for the credit if they can get it.

Q. Are all borrowers treated alike?

A. The answer is implicit in the question: of course not. The giant, first-rate borrower always gets preferred treatment in the financial world.

Q. That's discrimination and it's unfair.

A. Yes, it is. Everybody admits it. But what you must not shrug off is that the Federal Reserve System began to tighten credit months ago—first passively, and recently actively. Just a week ago today, I reported that this was a good time to borrow money because interest rates are heading higher. Phase 3 simply underlines and confirms the advice.

Q. What about the federal budget?

A. That's the second classic anti-inflation weapon: tighter control over federal spending, and that weapon the President obviously is determined to use. But a balanced budget—truly noninflationary—is a long way off. The Federal Reserve and credit policy have to carry the big burden for now.

Q. What's the inflation outlook?

A. Before Phase 3, the outlook was for a rise in living costs in 1973 in the 3 1/2 per cent range, at least—with the Agriculture Dept. itself forecasting that retail food prices will rise at a minimum annual rate of 4 1/2 per cent at least until this summer and possibly for longer.

Perhaps the relaxation of price-wage controls will result in some additional speed-up in inflation—and perhaps not. The answer will lie in how vigorously the "voluntary" controls are enforced—and that answer will not be known for some weeks.

One point is sure, though, at an annual inflation rate of 3 to 3 1/2 per cent year after year in the U.S., prices would double and triple in a quarter-century. A 3 per cent yearly rate would cut the dollar's buying power in half well before this century ends.

This is "jogging" inflation, an open invitation at all times to galloping inflation—with explosive economic social implications we're not even facing.

State legislators consider old issue of legalizing bingo games

MADISON — State lawmakers are again taking their political chances these days as they consider a resolution to allow voters to decide whether to amend the Constitution to legalize bingo.

Legalizing bingo means allowing commercial gambling a foothold in the state, warned State Rep. Lewis Mitniss, D-Janesville, at an Assembly State Affairs committee hearing on Tuesday.

"It's like being a little pregnant," warned Mrs. R. V. Anderson of the 1st District Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Let this be our rallying cry," said Madison attorney Edward Konkol in saying legal bingo would prove a financial boost to churches:

"Let's keep the little old ladies off the street by legalizing bingo."

"As far as I am concerned, organized crime has taken over the Reader's Digest hierarchy," said Mitniss in attacking the proliferation of magazine "sweepstakes" which he claimed pay far less than advertised.

The resolution, presented to the legislature for a second time, calls for a statewide referendum on the April ballot. If approved by the electorate, the legislature could permit licensed bingo operations run by religious, fraternal, charitable, service and veterans' organizations.

Authors of the resolution contended that the legalization would permit law enforcement agencies to regulate the many illegal bingo games in the state.

The constitution requires amendments to be presented and approved by two successive legislatures, and then ratified by the voters in an election. The legislature is in the process of its second consideration of the proposal to partially drop the constitutional ban on gambling in the state to allow only bingo.

Konkol argued that many churches would benefit from the profits available from bingo at a time in which church contributions are dropping.

"There are many parishes in the state which are struggling today," he said.

"Let's not identify this just with Catholicism," he said.

Former State Sen. Myron Lotto of Green Bay, an author of the move in the 1971 Legislature, said that legalizing bingo would permit elderly citizens a satisfying form of recreation.

$866, member of public grounds, board of social services, health committees; Carl Wilberscheid, $820, chairman of protection of persons and property and equalization committees.

A break-down of the $23,101, shows that $4,077 was paid for mileage and $19,024 for per diem. Supervisors receive $14 per committee meeting and 10 cents per mile. When more than 400 miles is traveled in one month, 7 cents per mile is paid for each additional mile. Supervisors attending county board sessions receive $20 plus mileage. The amount of compensation that highway committee members are allowed to earn in one calendar year may not exceed $1,200 in per diem services.

Keppler applies for job of Lucey's Washington aide

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Republican State Sen. Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan, ousted from substantial leadership duties in the GOP controlled Senate last month, has applied for the $20,000 a year job as Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's representative in Washington.

The post, now going through the recruitment process, has been proposed by Lucey as a state representative to handle federal-state relations and to handle lobbying in Congress and federal agencies for Wisconsin governmental interests.

The person hired for the post would be expected to maintain close contact and to work for the governor, according to the informal planning of the job duties in the executive office.

Actual hiring is being handled through regular channels of the State Bureau of Personnel.

Lucey has tried unsuccessfully in the past to recruit any number of Wisconsin newsmen and well-known Democratic staff aides for the post. A number of applications are known to be on file along with Keppler's.

Keppler will only say "no comment" to the reports, but the application has been confirmed elsewhere.

Keppler was re-elected to a four-year Senate term in November by 54 per cent of the vote. He would have to resign his seat to take the state post.

Democrats might be expected to carry his district in a subsequent special election.

The GOP now controls the Senate by an 18-15 edge. A Democratic victory there would lower that margin to a shaky 17-16.

Keppler was bounced from the post of Senate majority leader he held in the 1969 and 1971 sessions in the wake of the November elections. Many Republican leaders blame his brand of cooperative leadership with Democrat Lucey's legislative scorecard last year.

The GOP, gearing up for the 1974 gubernatorial battle, replaced Keppler and installed a leadership team of Raymond Johnson of Eau Claire and Jack Steinhilber of Oshkosh. Both lawmakers have the image of fighters.

Train kills 20 on bus

BANGKOK (AP) — Twentyfive Moslem pilgrims were killed and 20 injured Tuesday when their bus collided with the locomotive of an express train at a crossing in southern Thailand, police reported.

Police & fire beat

Erick Korth, 45, complained of side pains received in a two-car accident at the intersection of Mason and Pine streets about 3:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Police said Korth's car was east-bound on Pine while the second car, driven by Acewyn Zoutendijk, 22, 1101 W. Foster St., was headed south on Mason.

STEPHENSVILLE — Four persons were hospitalized after they were injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of Market and Wege roads in the Town of Ellington about 10:45 a.m. Tuesday.

Reported in good condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital were one driver, Gordon E. Roepke, 58, 1811 Lawrence St., New London, who suffered head cuts and chest bruises; the second driver, Rex F. Barton, 31, 813 S. Nash St., Hortonville, who received head cuts and a back injury; Barton's wife Karen, 31, who suffered head cuts and a hip injury; and their daughter Roxanne, 8, who received head cuts.

Outagamie County police said Roepke's vehicle was eastbound on Wege and the Barton car heading south on Market when the vehicles met in the open intersection.

Hearing scheduled in Sherwood on request for zoning change

SHERWOOD — A public hearing on a zoning change was set for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 13 by the village board.

Adrian Mader has requested having about one half acre of the former Joseph Schmidt property on Clifton Road, rezoned from residential to commercial. He requested the change be made immediately because of commitments.

Trustee Julius Schmidt opposed an immediate change until the matter is aired by the public.

Robert Mader, his brother who operates the Dynamic Island service station adjacent to the property, was present and said he supports a zoning change.

Appointed to the zoning committee were trustees Schmidt, William Mader and Jacob Mueller and president Clarence Zahringer.

Village Clerk Florian Schmidt was instructed to get copy of county joint action emergency ordinance which qualifies a municipality for emergency equipment from the federal government, as suggested by Schmidt.

Trustee William Mader, chairman of the safety committee stated a request had been made for a stop sign on the corner of Meehl and Stumpf Avenue as the intersection recently has been the site of several mishaps. The request was turned over to the public works committee.

Names submitted by Republican precinct committeeman, Clarence Mueller for the election board include, Clarence Lemke, George Martin, Mrs. Clarence Zahringer, Mrs. Paul Broeren, Harry Augustine and Mrs. Kenneth Kress. No names were submitted by the Democratic committeeman.

President Zahringer reported petitions asking the Public Service Commission for a new hearing regarding the recent rate increase granted Stockbridge-Sherwood Telephone Co. were being circulated. One member of a family should sign them he said.

A bartender's license was granted to Mary Ann Popp.

The village was informed of a public hearing in Madison, Jan. 15 by the Public Service Commission regarding the application of Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. for authority to include a temporary surcharge on electric rates.

All candidates for offices in the April 3 election were notified that nomination papers must be filed by 5 p.m. Jan. 30. Terms expiring are those of Clarence Zahringer; trustees, William Mader, Sylvester Stingle and Kenneth Kress; clerk, Schmidt; treasurer, Mrs. Milan Deprez; assessor, Anthony Mueller and constable, Wesley Seidel.

All incumbents, with the exception of Seidel have taken out nomination papers. William Mader is the only one to file completed papers, and papers have been taken by Adrian Mader, who is a newcomer to village politics.

All salaries for village officers will remain the same, the board agreed.

Senators carry cards

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — State senators now have to use what resembles a credit card to get onto the floor.

The card, inserted into a special lock, opens the door behind the rostrum — where newsmen and lobbyists used to corner the senators.

A senator who loses his card will have to pay $10 to get another.
